Chapman Is Again Head of Appropriation

Announcement was made at Harrisburg yesterday of the chairmanships and various committees of the State Senate and House. State Senator L. E. Chapman, of this district again heads the all important Appropriations committee of the Senate which is the most important in the body. Norman Wood is again the House appropriations committee chairman.

In the naming of committee the GOP took three places for every two given to the Democrats which is a better division than the old three for one formation.

Chairmanships in both branches of the Legislature all went to Republicans. James S. Berger, new member from the Ploga, McKean and Potter district was named as chairman of Labor and Industry. Inasmuch as Mr. Berger was formerly from Warren this appointment was of interest locally.

Chairmanships named were as follows:

Senate—Agriculture, George B. Scarlett, Chester; appropriations, Leroy E. Chapman, Warren; education, Frederick L. Homsher, Lancaster; executive nominations, Charles H. Ealy, Somerset; finance, James A. Goltz, Allegheny; judiciary general, John M. Walker, Allegheny; labor and industry, James S. Berger, Potter; mines and mining, J. Fred Thomas, Mercer; welfare, public assistance and pensions, Franklin Spencer Edmonds, Montgomery.

House—Agriculture, William R. McMillen, Indiana; appropriations, Norman Wood, Lancaster; education, D. Raymond Sollenberger, Blair; labor, Adam T. Bower, Northumberland; judiciary general, John H. McKinney, Venango; mines and mining, Earle E. Hewitt, Sr., Indiana; ways and means, Lloyd Wood, Montgomery; welfare, W. Stuart Helm, Armstrong.

Tractors Are Turned Loose On Rural Roads

County Highway Superintendent Warren Lowe is breathing a little easier as indications are good that the plugged roads about the county will soon be made passable. Not since the heavy snow of last month have some of the roads been passable. As fast as some degree of success had been attained in getting them open winds again drifted snow into the highways.

Machinery at the local station was inadequate to handle the situation.

However, during the past few days several tractors have arrived and these have been put into service. With the new machines and the fact that the main highways are in fairly good shape more attention can now be given to the rural roads and it is expected that unless another heavy snowfall takes place better progress can be made. The tractors were received from the State Highway Department.

PALS FROM CAMBRIA MISSING IN ACTION

Lilly, Jan. 16—(P)—Four soldiers from this Cambria county community enlisted, trained, furloughed and went overseas together.

Today the quartet—S/Sgt. Patrick F. Cassidy, S/Sgt. Grover E. Bradley, Sgt. Frank Funari and Cpl. Edward Kawtoski—is listed as missing in action.

Their parents received word from the war department that the four have been missing in Germany since Dec. 16. They enlisted in a group March 12, 1943, and trained together at Fort Jackson, S. C. Just before going overseas last October, all four were home on furlough.

Doughboy Jettisons German Souvenirs, Later Regrets It

By HAL BOYLE

(P)—Hiding in a small village being overrun by German tanks, PFC David L. Phelps, of Lytle, Tex., decided he'd better jettison his Nazi souvenirs and make himself a set of army dogtags.

"I heard about those Germans making it tough on prisoners having Nazi stuff, so I sure wasn't going to get caught with any of it on me," he grinned.

He stuffed 40 German marks down the drain and tossed away a handful of German coins. He also hid a German cap insignia and a bilfold made from a German pack.

"I had lost my dogtags and couldn't find a single thing to identify me," he said, "so I quickly made a pair out of cardboard. I didn't know but what they might accuse me of being a spy."

All of his preparations were for nothing. After hiding eight hours, he was able to rejoin American troops.

After the Nazis left town, Pfc. Glen H. Walker, of Felsenthal, Ark., wanted some fresh potatoes to supplement the evening's ration and began digging them in a field near the position of his anti-tank gun.

He noticed one potato was considerably heavier than the others. Scraping off the mud, he found he was holding a German anti-personnel mine. He carefully set the mine back in its hole and then, with the bag of potatoes slung over his shoulder, tenderly lifted out of the middle of the minefield.

The Germans attacked under cover of night. Pvt. Otis Stacker, of Falls, Tex., was alone in his foxhole. As quickly as he could, he loaded his rifle and got out some grenades. He threw his fire toward an enemy he could not see.

Sometime later he still was busy trying to pin down the invisible foe when he felt a tap on his back. He turned and saw his squad leader, S/Sgt. Lead A. O'Shield, of Hollywood, Cal., who had crawled over to his foxhole.

"Enjoying yourself?" asked the sergeant.

Stacker nodded, then fired another clip.

"Well, I hate to spoil your fun," said O'Shield, "but maybe you'd better ease up here for a while. The attack was over five minutes ago and the rest of us are trying to get some sleep."

APPEALS FOR CANS

Warren R. Roberts, chairman of the State Salvage Committee, today issued an appeal from headquarters in Harrisburg, urgently calling upon salvage chairmen in every county and district in the state to make special drive for prepared tin can collections through the schools. He pointed out that December collections were 2,265,856 cans against nearly twice that number in November and that the state is far below its quota. "Actually," Roberts said, "the record for the past month shows that only 22 cans were collected for each American soldier killed, wounded or taken prisoner by the Nazis on the western front."

Nazis Bring Back Hitler to Stay Home Unrest

Curt Riess, international journalist and author of such best-selling books as "The Nazis Go Underground" and "Total Espionage" which have forecast happenings inside Germany with uncanny accuracy, is in Europe on assignment from NEA Service. The following is one of a series of his dispatches which will appear exclusively in the Times-Mirror.

By CURT RIESS
Copyright, 1945, by NEA Service
London, Jan. 16—The reappearance of Adolf Hitler before the microphone and in public life after a prolonged and mysterious silence can be interpreted as meaning that things are going badly on the German home front. More than two months ago the press in American and England started a campaign asking the whereabouts of Hitler and questioning whether he actually were still alive. When, in the face of repeated inquiries in the Allied newspapers, Hitler remained silent, many concluded that he at least was sick or mad.

What we failed to understand was that the curiosity and apprehension of the Allied press was of no concern to Goebbels and the Nazi propaganda machine. Only apprehension and anxiety among the Germans themselves would have necessitated producing Hitler. His continued silence simply meant the Germans were not anxious.

However, the fact that the Allied press and radio went on a lull suggesting the death or madness of Hitler now provides a major victory in psychological warfare for Goebbels. He can say now that the Allies always lie and falsify.

There are many indications that Goebbels is about to conduct a vigorous propaganda campaign against Allied propaganda and trustworthiness, combined with a campaign establishing Hitler as infallible and a savior. The start of this campaign was, of course, the declaration that Hitler had the original idea for the von Rundstedt counteroffensive. This alleged fact was "proved" for Nazi home consumption by the long account of Leon Degrelle, Belgian Quisling, titled "The Fuehrer Thinks and Plans," published first by "Front und Heimat," German telegraph service for the forces' papers and reprinted in many German papers.

The story tells about his meeting with Hitler at headquarters on February 20, 1944. Though times seemed bad then, Hitler was calm, composed, optimistic, Degrelle reports. He saw the Fuehrer again in the autumn. Hitler was even more confident, also "amazingly rejuvenated," talking about Degrelle's family and the inevitable socialist revolution after the war. Finally, Degrelle says, he spoke of the war explaining that in due time he would stage a counteroffensive, while he was now organizing strategic retreats for just that purpose. Hitler was amused about enemy claims and propaganda. Nowadays Degrelle says, "Months have passed just as the Fuehrer foresaw, and the enemy is halted in East Prussia and Aachen, and now the Fuehrer attacks."

While discrediting Allied propaganda and news sources always was an important aim of Goebbels, there is no reason to believe that he would have produced Hitler and built him up all over for this reason alone. Dependable sources from inside the Reich tell me that Goebbels for about three weeks was anxious to get the Fuehrer to talk, with a gramophone recording unit waiting day and night near Hitler, till finally the New Year's speech was recorded.

At the same time Goebbels himself went all out in praise of the Fuehrer. He said Hitler is working constantly for the Germans, "spends sleepless nights, but gives the impression of almost a young man." Goebbels wrote an article in "Reich" about Hitler "standing alone in the icy loneliness of genius, and Hitler knows everything. No details are hidden from him and he has a sixth sense enabling him to see what is hidden from others. If the world really knew what his message meant and what love he possesses for his own people and for humanity, the world would surely desert false gods and worship him. Hitler is truth personified. One must know the style of Goebbels, also read his new article in the German original to understand that perhaps for the first time Goebbels is badly frightened.

Stray Leaves From Notebook Of Reporter About Town

That letter to the Town Council meant having the city keep the sidewalks cleared of snow has sure started something. Have had ever so many telephone calls inquiring as to "why doesn't council do something about it?" and a batch of letters. One of the letters is sort of enlightening. "Strikes me Councilmen follow the line of least resistance. Evidently from the looks of their sidewalks they go on the supposition that the public will tramp down the snow and the cops won't bother them inasmuch as they are Councilmen. If they worked in a shop and came home in the small hours of the morning and found their walk covered with inches of snow I'll bet they would get some small tractors and plows and clean the walks. Which if those councilmen don't want to have the city do the work? Let me know and the heat will be so hot on those guys they won't need a snow shovel." Old John Q. Public evidently thinks a snow plow or two wouldn't do any harm.

Charley Wagner, who during the days that the Morning Chronicle was in existence here was on the desk of the paper and who is now located in Detroit on the desk of the Sunday News had his attention attracted by a story on the United Press wire about a Warren county suicide. So it roused a nostalgic note and he sat himself down to the typewriter and dashed off a letter to: Coroner Ed Lowrey. His letter follows:

Jan. 11, 1945.

Dear Ed:
Look what I ran across on the United Press report one day this week. Imagine the guy I knew running a linotype, later a sports reporter and then an editor now running around Warren county in search of demented people—may be I'd better never come back that way—I might be found by either you or the sheriff.

Long time since I sat on a coroner's jury with you but those were pleasant days to remember. Lot of fun I have in that city, and we didn't think of it as work in those days whereas now the Guild limits the hours and maybe hat's a good thing too.

The lad of mine who was born in Warren was killed on Invasion Day and after all the last war was fought to end all wars. May this one soon be over. Two more from our family in it and a son-in-law going with the medics in the Pacific shortly.

Have been sitting at the Sunday desk here now longer than I like to think and I hope it will not be much longer. Am planning to get away to Florida the 1st of February and next fall to locate there permanently. Mrs. W. and I have a weekly paper in one of the Detroit suburbs that is doing very nicely and if the Lord wills one of the boys will operate that just as soon as this war is over.

My best wishes to you Ed and all the old friends.

is another indication that things aren't going well on the German home front. Most interesting is the fact that it does not refer to the Rundstedt offensive. This does not mean as many here believe, that the offensive has failed. It means, however, that the offensive will not live up to the expectations to which the Germans were encouraged; namely, ultimate victory. In short, Hitler is anxious to keep from arousing hopes and even reminding the Germans that such hopes were aroused only a fortnight ago, evidently fearing the reaction already setting in.

He prefers to prepare the Germans for a long war until 1946. The new motive of the German propaganda line as described above, namely, all-out attack on Allied trustworthiness, is taken up by Hitler extensively when he reminds listeners how often the Allies promised immediate victory. However, Hitler admits that something is foul inside Germany by threatening to destroy those who are unwilling to continue the war.

Other Nazi leaders attempt to deal with unrest on the home front in a different way. Ley, in "Angriff," writes that arming the Home Guard, which means arming practically every German, proves that the Nazis can risk trusting every German and that no discontent exists, adding that neither Roosevelt nor Churchill and Stalin could risk this. Such a statement is whistling in the dark when read against a background of ever-growing nervousness and discontent in the Reich. There is no day without news of arrests of officers by Himmler, arrests of several Gauleiters, and a constantly rising epidemic of flu caused by lack of food and medicine and fuel.

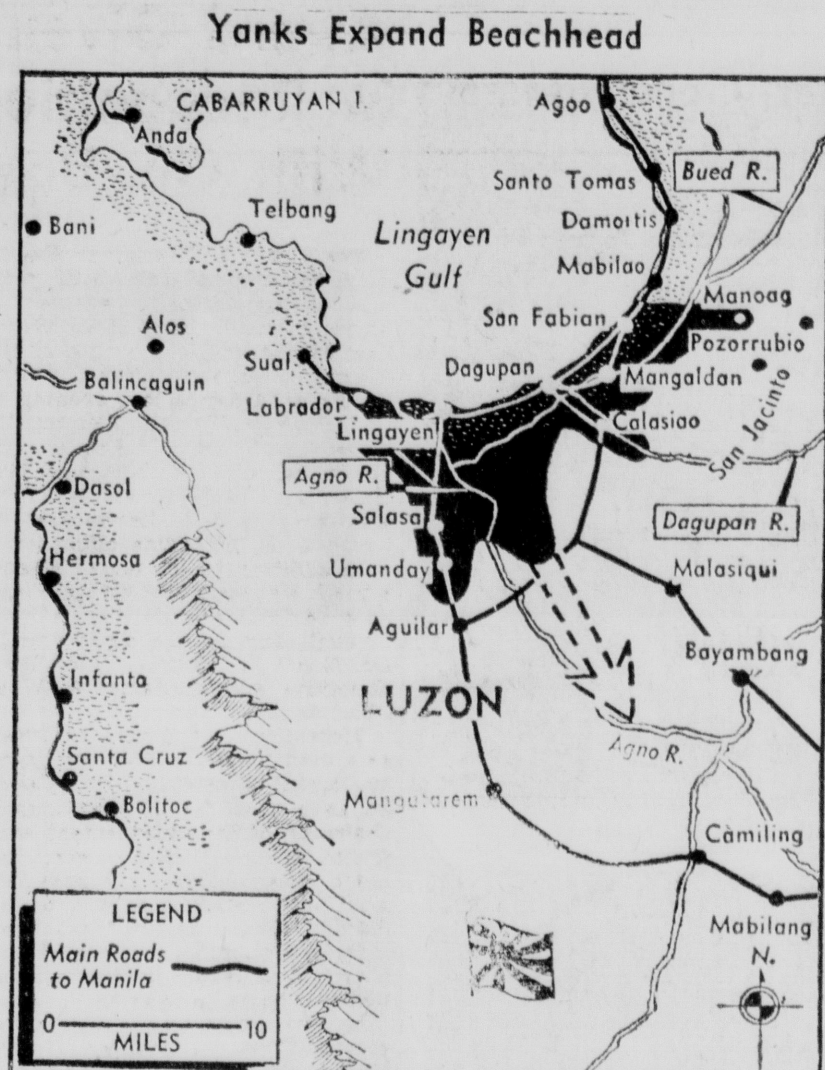

All this goes far toward proving that Hitler spoke because he had to, because he is the only person capable of checking rising discontent and unwillingness to continue the war.

The other day a couple of kids were discussing the matter of playing "hookey" and somehow it recalled that playing "hookey" was really nothing new but that now they have a truant officer to chase the hookeys instead of having the superintendent of schools do it. Could help but recall how W. L. MacGowan used to tout around the city on his bicycle with his coat tails (remember the kind of coat he wore with the slit tails?) flying running down and locating the youths who would rather explore than sit in school. Seems there were a group composed of George Mackay, Harry McCalmont and another brother who used in the days of spring when bees buzzed and hornets' face bit well in Jackson Run toured often. On the run was a summer house and just below it was a nice pool where the fish struck early and often. The tourists enjoyed the woods and the fishing until one day—Ah, that was the day. Up the lane leading to the cow pasture and the summer puffed the bike rider and he caught the gang red handed busily frying fish and enjoying the fruits of the hours out of school. Yep way was made back to school and some have always had a hunch that Mac would have enjoyed being out there with the bunch. They call it juvenile delinquency now. Bushwah!

Speaking of fishing, have you ever set a night line? That used to be the best fun in the world. At eventide you went out in a boat that would never have passed inspection as the water squirted through the bottom. You paddled and baited water out of the boat and baited the hooks and line as you had time. Finally you had em all baited and went ashore. Somehow it was never a chore to get out of bed early to "look at the line." What a collection of mud puppies, suckers and once in a while a good gamey fish were on the hooks. But they all looked mighty good and you liked for home with them only to have your mother greet you Hurry up and get that fish smell off its time to get off to school! Somehow there doesn't seem to be the number of kids enjoying that sport that there used to be. I'll bet Bill Walker has rowed a million miles on a creek and never setting night lines. "Bank" Mitchell would give a lot to pry himself away from the desk down at the West Penn building in Pittsburgh and unlash in an old boat. Probably he goes to Canada now for a bit of fishing but here's bettin' he never has any more fun than he used to have in the river with "Red" Henry, Harry Gilbert and others setting a night line.

You know that bunch up at Sylvanville certainly give you service. Months ago when the formation of the Sylvanville in Warren was a thing much desired but not yet attained "Bob" Kronenwetter, of Emporium presented yours truly with a pencil. It was a darned good pencil and from then on it came in for general use. Finally some person with an acquisitive bump developed a yen for the pencil and lo behold it passed from sight. Like all men do when a pencil disappears the little woman was accused. But she refused to be implicated so search was made in the spare vest pocket. No pencil there. Then a hunt was staged through drawers—desk if you please—and finally the pencil was given up for lost, strayed or STOLEN.

So one day when talking to Art Chapman, major domo of the Warren plant the passage of the pencil from the realm of the newspaper office was mentioned. Boy, oh boy in a short time along came another pencil which works just as good as the original. So here's hopin' that Art continues to enjoy life and will be around when other ornery cuss steals this pencil.

U. S. forces, surging across the Central Luzon plains on a 20-mile front, expanded their invasion beachhead to at least 200 square miles and sent patrols (white arrow) probing across the Agno River only 90 miles from Manila.

Orrie Loper, Register and Recorder, gentleman farmer and chief tillerman of the North Warren Hook and Ladder Company reported today that he is fresh out of steers. Orrie had some dandies at his farm and cattle ranch in Cone-wango township but they have all been sold and passed away and buried in lockers only to be resurrected when the red points run low. His hands were all red this morning when he reported at the Court House and it was stated that they got that way as he rubbed them so vigorously when contemplating with glee his crop of winter wheat. Of course he couldn't see the wheat but the mantle of white snow oozing nitrogen to the young tender wheats tickled Orrie half to death. He is already planning on threshing the crop which really ought to be an old socker with all the snow that has been covering the young shoots this winter.

Those boys at North Warren who conduct the fire department there are comfortable once again. The boys have a due and proper headquarters all fixed up as a meeting place and for housing the fire truck. They meet every Wednesday evening and get a lecture on fire fighting and how to rescue damsels overcome with smoke and such. But of late the cold has penetrated their lair and it was cold. So cold in fact the boys could not keep their mind on the damsels in distress. They sought more gas but due to fuel regulations the gas man said "No." There was imminent danger of the booster tank on the truck freezing up and the boys were in a quandary on what to do. Small coal stoves were secured and finally one of the members came forth with a dandy oil burner. The day and the night, too, has been saved and now the lectures can continue in warmth.

Don't let Jack Frost get through your water pipeline. He'll score heavily against you.

Freezing weather causes unprotected water pipes to burst. Repairs may be delayed due to material and manpower shortages and you would be without running water for several days. Repairs will be expensive, too.

During these extremely cold nights, your "line of defense" against Jack Frost is:

ALLOW A SMALL TRICKLE OF WATER—ABOUT A QUART A MINUTE—TO RUN ALL NIGHT FROM A FAUCET LOCATED HIGHEST IN YOUR HOUSE.

- Make sure exposed water pipes and meter are wrapped with old newspapers, rags or burlap.
- See that your basement is air tight. Repair broken window panes. Stuff cracks in walls, around windows and around doors which admit cold air.

YOUNGSMEN NEWS

METHODIST MEN
There was a good attendance on Thursday evening at the meeting of Methodist men held in the church parlors. Major Harold McConnell, of Torpedo, told very interestingly of his life in Italy, from where he recently returned. He described the poverty of many of the peasants and war conditions in that country. He spoke particularly of a visit to Rome, which he found very little damaged, with costly and beautiful churches and interesting sights. Refreshments were served. Methodist men were invited to the Frewsburg, N. Y., Six Point Fellowship meeting Tuesday evening, January 16.

MONEY RECOVERED
Mrs. Lois Wymer, of Youngsville, whose husband is in service, lost for a time a purse containing money, just how much she did not know. After searching the house, she finally found the charred remains of the purse, which had accidentally fallen into a waste paper basket and been burned with the scrap paper. She took the charred purse to a bank and it was sent to the proper authorities for reclaiming of money damaged by fire and she received $30 last week, the contents identified in the purse.

PETERSON-LOOMIS
Mrs. Helen Loomis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Graham, of Bates street, Youngsville, was united in marriage Tuesday at 3 p. m. to Allen Peterson, of Warren. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride by Rev. Dwight Jack, pastor of the local Methodist church. WOUNDED IN FRANCE
Sympathy is felt for Mr. and Mrs. Emil Johnson, who have recently been informed by the government that their son, Charles Johnson, had sustained wounds in action in France. We hope a later report may tell of his improvement.

HONOR WORTHY MATRON
At a dinner meeting in the I. O. O. F. dining room Friday evening, Youngsville Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star honored their worthy matron, Mrs. Cloie Mead, and Worthy Patron, Carl E. Anderson. The tables were very attractive. The colors of the order were used in decorations of stars, candles and wrapping of the dainty address books used as favors. Welcome to the officers honored and to the guests was not only expressed in the program, but in cut-out letters suspended above the tables.

The committee, consisting of Mrs. Jessie Peters and Mrs. Edna Peters, co-chairmen; Mrs. Dorothy Crandall, Mrs. Nellie Anderson, Mrs. Nina Hamilton and Mrs. Mabel Chipman, was responsible for the delightful dinner enjoyed. Gifts were presented to Mrs. Mead, and Mr. Anderson. Miss Lily Wood pleased with a vocal solo and also directed the singing of songs from a song sheet as the guests were at the table. Two of the songs were original numbers written for the occasion. Mrs. Dorothy Crandall as toastmistress used as the general subject the "Word Smile." Following the welcome and presentations of gifts, Worthy Matron Mead and Worthy Patron Anderson responded with appropriate words.

Letters to the Editor

Warren Times-Mirror:

Dear Editor: I heartily agree with the views expressed in Thursday's editorial regarding the position our government takes toward the 4-F's. I suppose quite a few of them are to blame themselves for not being physically fit, but many are suffering from hereditary defects, and many more are as they are because they did not receive the right kind of care in childhood.

In many families the pay check just will not cover all the needed dental and medical care, together with the extra milk and foods needed to build fit and sturdy bodies. Also all of us can recall many families in which the children were denied this extra care, because too large a proportion of the family income went to buy intoxicating liquor. Who is to blame for these conditions? Our government is proposing a great National Health Program after the war, upon which billions of dollars are to be spent, but no word is said about curbing or doing away with the greatest saboteur of health that is known, the liquor traffic. No the poor man must have his opiate so he will not realize how wretched he is, and now his wife is joining him in his program of befuddlement. God have pity on the children deprived of the care of both parents. I say let us fight all the evils that have made so many of our citizens unfit to fill the place they ought to fill, and let all be treated alike. If it is fair to conscript some for military duty and some for war work; it is fair to conscript every person to fill the place, in this all out war, that they are fitted to fill.

Mr. Tyler will succeed J. D. Morris, who has been promoted to superintendent of the Panhandle Division at Pittsburgh.

A native of Shelbyville, Ill., Mr. Tyler began his railroad service as an assistant on the engineering corps at St. Louis in 1923, shortly after graduating from Rose Polytechnical Institute.

He was advanced to assistant superintendent at Trenton in 1926, and in 1929 was promoted to supervisor at Sunbury. Following service on several other divisions, he was advanced to assistant division engineer at New York in 1934, and to division engineer later the same year. In 1939 he became an engineer at the Washington Terminal. On January 1, 1942, Mr. Tyler went to the Maryland Division as division engineer.

Mr. Morris began his railroad career in 1926. He was made superintendent of the Renovo Division in June, 1943.

Mr. Tyler will assume his new duties on Tuesday, January 16.

New First Aid Building Now Being Built

In line with its effort to provide the best of care for its employees the National Forge and Ordnance Company, at Irvine, has construction under way on a new first aid building. The structure will be of brick, two stories in height and about 35x40 feet, ground measurements. When completed it will be moderately equipped and the nurses in charge will be provided with all of the latest paraphernalia for giving first aid treatment in event of accidents or injuries to employees. It will replace the old structure which will be razed to make room for a new steam boiler installation which is scheduled to get under way in the early part of April.

In addition to the first aid rooms which will be on the first floor of the new structure the second floor will be devoted to a new development laboratory. This will also be moderately equipped and will fill a need long felt at the plant.

A LATE LOOK

The House Military Affairs Committee, according to a dispatch from Washington, would like to canvass the manpower problems in military and war production fields before reaching any decision.

A look before a leap is certainly commendable. But why is the committee (and apparently the House and Senate) only now getting around to look? And why has legislation to cure these manpower problems already been introduced when congressional information is apparently so inadequate?

The existence of manpower shortages in certain critical fields is not news. The President first asked Congress for national service legislation well over a year ago. And since that first tentative request the manpower situation has gone from better to worse.

The need for more ammunition, heavy artillery, trucks and tires, radar equipment and cotton duck is six months old. Congress has known of this need. It has sent some of its members to the battlefronts to see the result of shortages with their own eyes. It has received from War Mobilizer Byrnes a detailed report on production and manpower problems.

And now, when enough of everything and more to spare is needed to press the attack in the Philippines and throw back the Germans in Europe, the House Military Affairs Committee wants to canvass the situation.

What has the committee, and Congress in general, been doing in the meantime? Well, for one thing, they were pretty busy running for office. There was the question last summer of recessing without becoming hasty so that the members might get home to their constituents. And after the elections were over there was really very little that the waning 78th Congress felt that it could do, emergency or no emergency.

And then what happened when the new Congress finally rolled up its sleeves and prepared to tackle its critical tasks? Well, the first order of business in the House was to reconstitute the so-called Dies Committee and put it on a permanent basis. There was also considerable talk of investigating organizations like the CIO-PAC and curbing their future activities.

We don't say that a congressional committee to investigate anti-American activities is not, in principle, a good thing. Nor do we contend that "non-partisan" political organizations should be immune to investigation. But we do maintain that they are not of first importance today, at the expense of pressing military needs.

TRUCE IN ATHENS

A truce finally has halted (or at least tempered) the clash of arms between the Greek leftist insurgents and British troops, but it can hardly be expected that this will end such a violent eruption, especially since Greece is politically volcanic by nature—and has become one of the hottest of the international hot-spots.

However, the Allies will breathe easier with even temporary cessation of a politico-military imbroglio which has stirred the emotions of the United Nations deeply. It even has produced a divergence of views among the Big Three.

It's highly significant of the trend of the times that rarely has the man-in-the-street in Allied countries been so wrought up over the affairs of a little country. It is discussed everywhere.

In the opinion of many the next big step in the Greek affair—provided the lid can be kept on the fighting—presumably will be the holding of a post-war plebiscite to decide whether Greece is to retain the monarchy or adopt some other form of government.

TOMORROW—TIN CAN DAY!

Your attention is directed to an article on page one of this issue calling attention to the fact that there will be a tin can collection in the county tomorrow.

Full details are outlined for the guidance of all householders and it is urged that instructions be followed to the letter so that the collection will not only be made with a minimum of delay but that the cans be in the best possible condition for utilization in the war effort.

A richly deserved honor was bestowed upon Harold Banghart, president of the Warren County Boy Scout Council, last evening when he was presented the Silver Beaver award. Much of the success of the Council is due to the self-sacrificing contributions made by Mr. Banghart.

$724,000,000 of Post War Road Projects Ready for Use

New York, Jan. 16.—Results of a nation-wide survey completed by Construction Methods, McGraw-Hill publication, indicate that the states are prepared to advertise a total of $724 million of postwar road-building projects within a 90-day period if a sudden capitulation of Germany this month should release manpower and materials for civilian work.

"Projects to the value of $285 million are reported ready for advertising within 30 days, $189 million within 30 to 60 days, and $252 million within 60 to 90 days. "Volumes reported represent estimates by state highway officials

Washington In Wartime

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—As the stream of war veterans returning to civilian life rises to higher war levels, the Veterans Administration is discovering problems "by the thousands."

Asked to set forth some of the more important ones, VA officials came forth with more "don'ts" than there are in a Mother's Day with a rambunctious youngster. Here are a few, and if you're not a discharged veteran, clip them and give them to one who is. Most of them are elementary but all are sound.

Don't carry your original discharge around with you. It will get dog-eared, dirty, and possibly unreadable. You may lose it. In either case the red tape involved may result in such a snarl that you'll lose benefits you deserve, or even worse. Get a photostatic or certified copy (it wouldn't be a bad idea to get several at once, if you're inclined to be careless). Either of these will serve in most cases. Put the original (and every other item of official service data you have) in a safety deposit box or a fire-proof safe or strong box. You'll have use for it the rest of your life.

DON'T procrastinate in finding what benefits you are entitled to as a veteran. Many of these benefits eventually expire, depending on how many months or years you have been out of service. Once the statute of limitations has run, you are simply out of luck. Establish your rights as a veteran as soon as possible and then keep informed on the status of all those rights in which you are interested.

Don't toss off your readjustment allowance as if it were vacation money. You can get it up to any time until two years after the war. Jobs are easy to get now. It may be good insurance against a period when they don't come so easily.

The same holds true for any war bonds you have purchased while in the service.

Don't, if you have the least uncertainty about what you want to do in life, neglect the opportunities offered under the G. I. Bill of Rights for further education or training. These opportunities are not passed over for a job that is temporarily remunerative but will not equip you to take advantage in the future.

Don't surrender your national service life insurance for cash. Even if you are pinched and feel that money on the barrel-head is more important now, the time may come when you can never get that kind of insurance coverage again. For the same reason, don't let it lapse.

DON'T fail to notify VA immediately of dependency or marital status. Under many of those changes, you may deserve more benefits than you are receiving. If you deserve less, failure to notify will simply expose you to double trouble when you are found out.

Don't be in a big hurry to borrow money for a home, farm, business, or anything else under the G. I. Bill of Rights loan stipulations. Remember that this is a loan and has to be paid back. You may be throwing your dough into a well.

Hollywood Gossip

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—When Capt. Burgess Meredith was spending a few days with Ernie Pyle in New Mexico, talking over "The Story of GI Joe," he found Paige Cavanaugh there. Naturally.

Paige and the war correspondent, whom Meredith will portray in the picture, have been close friends since boyhood in Dana, Ind. They talk alike, which may be attributed to mutual Hoosier origin, but they also look alike, which may be some phenomenon resulting from mutual admiration, long and deep-rooted.

Meredith tells it that the three of them, after a long gab session one night, retired to their bunks and, unable to sleep, began talking back and forth in the dark.

"Know why you can't sleep, Ernie?" Paige mused aloud.

"No. Why?"

"Because you're too rich. All that dough you're making."

Pyle thought it over. Then: "Paige, you know why you can't sleep?"

Paige bit. "You're not rich enough," said Ernie.

Paige considered that one. "Well, Ernie, I tell you," he said finally. "You give me half what you've got—and then we can all get some sleep."

"The Story of GI Joe" now is well under way after the long delays. Meredith, Pyle's own choice to portray Pyle, is on "loan" from the Army Air Force.

which he joined as a private three years ago. He now bears a remarkable resemblance to the correspondent, which is not entirely due to the artificial baldness applied over his own shaved pate. The two are about the same height, 5 feet 8, but Meredith has to watch his diet, especially his desserts, to keep within plausible range of Pyle's slight frame.

Meredith has been seeing the country—Texas, Missouri, California, Washington, D. C., Indiana, Pennsylvania—since he joined up. He served with Air Force Intelligence in England, has worked on documentary informative films ("Salute to France" and "Welcome to Britain"), he has been told, helped familiarize GIs in advance with Allied countries, customs, and people. He was in England for part of the robomb blitz.

THE movie assignment has been hanging fire for months and now that it's begun Meredith admits he faces a problem. "Ordinarily in a biographical film," he observes, "there's no need for the actor to resemble the character. But with Pyle so well known, especially to all the other correspondents, we've had to try to approximate him physically."

"All I can hope, with everyone having his own personal conception of the character, is that I won't run contrary to the public's estimate of him. If I do, I'll just start running. But I think it's more important to get his spirit than to follow minute details. And if Ernie wanted me to do it, that's the last word—for my protection."

YEARS AGO IN WARREN

Interesting Items Taken From The Warren Evening Times

In 1925 Dick Schumacher, Warren High's most lettered man, had more laurels forced upon him when teammates elected him captain of the 1925 baseball team. He has held every elective athletic position in the school.

The Warren Land Company has announced the erection of four new houses, all of which are to be built on Connecticut Avenue at an approximate cost of $4500 each.

Thirty nine years ago yesterday the Warren Young Men's Christian Association was erected, and for but one interruption, a disastrous fire in 1911, has been educating boys and men in high ideals and morals. The building was erected at a cost of $40,000 and many more dollars have been spent on it.

Some 120 high school seniors have secured their class rings and the prospective graduates are very proud of their jewelry which is each inscribed with a 25, a coat of arms, and two dragons.

In 1935 Public Works Administrator Ickes has announced this increase in non-federal loan and grant allotments: Tidoute, Pa. grant of $9,200 for a school building addition increased to $13,000 because of increased costs.

Over a score of Warrentes thronged the Pennsylvania railroad station to secure passage to Harrisburg where the inauguration of George Earle is taking place.

State Senator L. E. Chapman was given one of the most important assignments in the upper house in being named to head the Education committee. He also is vice-chairman of the Public Health committee.

The Conewango Club is sponsoring another dinner-boxing card at the club. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p. m. followed by four bouts between Warren, James-town, Sugar Grove, and Clarendon men.

Nearly Hundred Attend 31st Annual Meeting of YWCA; Enjoy Program

Nearly 100 members and guests attended the 31st annual meeting of the YWCA held last evening in the activities building, with dinner served at six o'clock at three long tables placed in the form of a triangle. Appointments were simple but very attractive, with reports contained in a blue and white booklet at each place, blue and white candles and small pottery shoes which emphasized the program theme, "Step Ahead with the Y, W. C. A."

Dinner music was provided by two young high school musicians, Eleanor Peters and Nick Geraci. Following the serving, Mrs. Carl Lundahl, president, welcomed old and new members and guests and spoke of many changes which have come in the year just concluded. She introduced several new staff members, Barbara Lesser, Ruth Mary Hucksabone and Alfreda Laugerquist and presented Bertha Frating, program chairman, who in turn introduced the guest speaker, Rev. William Lane, pastor of Emanuel Evangelical and Reformed church.

For his topic "Helping Young People to Be Good Christians," the speaker traced a background in which he asked his audience to stop and consider what our relationship to God might be and in which he defined religion. He then urged that youth be taught a simple religion, based on a sincere acceptance of its responsibilities, the basic principles of a moral life and the knowledge that religion is a personal thing, to be attained only by the individual. This must be taught, he declared, through ex-

Another 'Teen-age Community Party Scheduled for January 27th at Beatty

The Committee on Community Recreation held a meeting Sunday evening to plan for its next Sunday afternoon broadcast over Station WJTN on Sunday, January 21, and for its next 'teen-age community party at Beatty school, the date of which has been set for Saturday, January 28. The broadcast next Sunday will consist of a typical recreation committee session, with some of its plans and problems. This will be the second time the committee has been heard in such a WJTN program.

Two new features are announced for the youth party on the 27th, which is open to anyone in high school or out of high school and not more than 21 years of age. There will be ice skating activities, weather permitting, an auditorium entertainment in addition to the regular floor show. Two orchestras have been signed up for the evening's dancing. The group formerly known as Mac McCarthy's Band will play the first half of the evening and Dale Soderburg's Orchestra the second half. Floor show tryouts will be completed next Saturday morning, when auditions will be held at 10:30 o'clock in Beatty auditorium. Anyone in the teens is eligible and welcome to this tryout.

Community Choral Group Plans For a Full Organization

Announced in conjunction with the holiday presentation of "The Messiah" was the decision to form a local community choral group. The executive committee designated at that time has chosen the name Warren Music Guild and will present it for approval of the entire group at a meeting to be held at 4 p. m. Sunday, January 28, in the First Presbyterian church. All who care to join such a choral group are asked to be present at that meeting.

The executive committee also announces that Jackson Barrell has been designated as director for the society and that its next community choral presentation will be "The Seven Last Words" by Dubois, to be heard during the Easter season.

Soloists already engaged for this musical event include Stephen Carrier, of New Bethlehem, who scored such universal approval as tenor soloist for "The Messiah," in December; also Eugene Bisch, of Pittsburgh, eminent young bass. Plans have been made to include an instrumental section of the Warren Music Guild.

The executive committee of the new organization includes Felix Mira, president; Miss Viola Lindmark, treasurer; Miss Gladys Young, secretary; Nat. Drake, chairman of finance committee, and all choir directors of Warren who will participate.

Great enthusiasm is expressed by this group in the eager response which has come to the plan of the Guild to present great choral works as community projects. The experience of officers and others who are lending their efforts and the careful planning of the undertaking assure the new organization of a sound basis and permanence over the coming years, for the greatest enrichment and cultural life of the community.

Davidson-Johnson Rites Performed In Bethlehem Congregational Church

Margaret Evangeline Johnson, of Warren, and Raymond E. Davidson, of Renovo, were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony performed at 4 p. m. Saturday, January 13, in Bethlehem Congregational church. Rev. P. E. Landerdahl, pastor, conducted the rites.

The church was attractively decorated with palms and white chrysanthemums and a beautiful program of wedding music played by Linnea Scott including the following, in addition to the traditional wedding march: "Salut d'Amour," "Sweetest Story Ever Told," "Because," "O Promise Me," "O Perfect Love."

The bride wore a street length dress of white wool crepe with gold sequin trim, brown accessories and a gold necklace which was a gift of the bridegroom. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses and a bunch of white roses. The bride was attended by her sister, Sigrid M. Johnson, who wore a street frock of blue crepe with brown accessories and carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses and a bunch of white roses.

Herman Davidson was his brother's best man and ushers were two brothers of the bride, Mr. Robert W. Johnson, of Camp Swift, Texas, and Walter C. Johnson, of Warren. A reception followed at the Woman's Club for 30 guests. The table was beautifully arranged with white tapers and white chrysanthemums, ferns and holly. A specially appointed table was a large wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. A record of the reception was made in motion pictures taken by Walter Johnson.

Guests included the following from out of town: Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Whitman and Ruth Anderson, the latter a cousin of the bridegroom, of Renovo; Florence and Herman Davidson, Philadelphia. Later the couple left for a wedding trip to New York and Philadelphia, to be at home after January 22 at 628 Pennsylvania avenue, Renovo. Improving the Round Face

If you have a moon face, don't sport a halo or wear glasses that repeat the "moon" effect. The flat halo keeps up the circular illusion.

That's the advice of Eddie Senz of Fifth Avenue, New York City, whose conceptions are here presented in cooperation with the Better Vision Institute.

wrong to wear round glasses that repeat the "moon" effect. The slanting glasses give a lift at the temples, elongate and "square" the circle face. The built-up pompadour and bow at neck also aid in breaking up the "run around" effect.

Greyhound Bus Wrecked at Three Points; Driver Is Injured

The Greyhound bus due in Warren from the west at 3:40 was wrecked yesterday afternoon near the Three Points service station. The big machine was driven by Leo Kidd, of Cleveland and he died this morning that he had overturned his horn to pass a car proceeding in the same direction as was the bus. The driver of the car pulled over and just as the bus was passing swerved back close to the truck.

Not wishing to brush the passenger car the bus driver pulled a little more off the road, hit a lump of ice and was forced a trifle more to his right. Hitting the shoulder on the road the bus crashed into a culvert, striking sideways. The bus was so wedged between the culvert and a telephone pole it could not be extricated last night by crews from this city which went to the scene.

Kidd was jammed against the steering wheel and blood began oozing from his mouth and he was rushed to a physician at Youngsville and then sent to the Warren Hospital. He was discharged this morning and will go to Cleveland today for further examination. It was his first accident in eleven years of service. However it appeared unavoidable.

Passengers on the bus were shaken up to some extent and one, who was sleeping, was jarred considerably and was given medical attention but his injuries were slight.

The driver of the passenger car did not stop to render any aid but continued on his way and an effort will be made to locate him.

It was a most fortunate affair in every way as had the big bus crashed head on into the culvert there would have been many seriously hurt if not killed. Driver Kidd was commended by the passengers for his handling of the huge machine in the emergency.

Reports were current in the city last evening that the bus had overturned and that a number had been seriously injured.

At the regular weekly drill of Company I, 16th Regiment held last evening at the Armory the attendance was good but not really what it should have been. Due to so many men being inducted into the U. S. Service the Guardsmen are finding it difficult to keep up to strength of the company. Men from 17 to 50 are urged to enlist.

A number of promotions were announced at the drill which affect a number of men in the company as follows:

1st Lieut. John R. Hedman has been commissioned as a Captain in the PSG.

2nd Lieut. Everett E. Carlson has been commissioned as a First Lieut. in the PSG.

The following enlisted men of the company have received promotions: Sgt. Emerson R. Reider to the grade of Staff Sergeant; Cpl. Ernest L. Shark and Cpl. Joseph P. Hucksabone to the grade of Sergeant; PFC John E. Coulter, PFC John D. Quiggle, Pvt. Orsell F. Moran and Pvt. Albert Seymour, Jr., to the grade of Corporal; Pvt. Guy A. Edris, Pvt. Leonard J. Engel, Pvt. Gerald Hammerbeck, Pvt. George Lucia and Pvt. William Meno to the grade of PFC.

Loss occasioned by the fire at the Wills Dry Cleaning plant was covered by insurance, according to a statement from the firm this morning. The fire is also said to have been caused by a backfire from a boiler. The building was undamaged and operations are under way today as usual.

Small Boys Save Lad From Creek Waters

What might have been a serious accident or perhaps even a drowning was averted Sunday morning shortly after 11:30 when Leonard, 10 and Charles, 8 sons of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Anderson, 311 Frank street, pulled Eddie Erickson, 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Creed Erickson from the Conewango creek. Young Erickson was on his way home from Sunday school and descended to the ice under the Third street bridge. In some way he ventured out where the ice was thin and it gave way. He grasped the ice about him and cried for help. The two Anderson lads also on their way home from Sunday School heard the cries and went to his aid. They succeeded in getting the boy out after a struggle.

"Were you not afraid that the ice would give way and let you in to the creek, too?" was asked of Leonard Anderson. "Oh, no," said the ten year old lad. "I never thought of that. The boy was in the creek crying for help so I just got him out."

Another plaque will be presented to Lew Byrer in recognition of his 25 years as sports editor of the Columbus Citizen.

Jimmy Conzelmann, assistant to President Don Barnes of the St. Louis Browns, will be the principal speaker.

Robinson, Bell Battle In Cleveland Scrap

By LARRY SMITH
Cleveland, Jan. 16—(AP)—The welterweight division's hardest punches collide at the arena in a 10-round tonight and the impact will shatter the impressive winning streaks of either Ray (Sugar) Robinson or Tommy Bell.

Robinson, ranked by the National Boxing Association as the logical contender for the welterweight title now held by the navy's Freddie (Red) Cochran, has lost only one of 52 professional scraps and has kayced 35 of his victims.

Bell has won 28 straight fights, 15 via the knockout route. He's fifth on the NBA's list of welterweight contenders but a victory tonight may boost him to the challenger's spot.

CLUB HOUSE TALK

By CHIP ROYAL
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

New York—It's about time that baseball got off the 4-F spot that Jimmy Byrnes and some of the pastime's writers have dumped it on.

The war mobilization director started it when he banned horse racing and blasted athletes who were unfit for the Army and Navy but who could run, play, fight, etc., for the entertainment of others.

Probably few groups of Americans ever took such a sarcastic scolding from such a high government voice—and all because they followed military dictates.

This agent thinks every able-bodied American belongs in the service. And if anyone ducks his obligation, he should be exposed. But when the Army doctors turn a man down, classify him as 4-F, that individual should not be a subject for finger-pointing.

As for commentators who have baseball "on the brink of a precipice," or "folding up," they can be excused. This is the so-called "hot stove league" season—and they must write something about baseball.

It does seem, though, that the writers could help the sport a lot more by following the late Judge Landis' theory that baseball will continue as long as each of the 16 teams can field nine men.

Baseball isn't through any more than the Mississippi. It will go on and on to bigger and better years. Maybe there will be fewer players this season, but certainly there will be enough to keep the grand old game going.

I'll bet you the best stogie you ever had on that.

According to the little birdie in Washington, the Byrnes action was aimed at embarrassing about 400,000 4-F's into war jobs. The Army and Navy are not interested in taking all the 4,000,000 or more 4-F's. It would be too risky.

That means that Washington is concerned about 10 per cent of the rejectees.

Baseball wouldn't make a squawk if it lost all the 281 4-F's who played major league ball in 1944. The game and the men connected with it, haven't asked any favor. They never intend to.

Servicemen tell reporters they're all for athletics to continue and baseball is the last sport they want to see stopped.

Personally, we can see why ALL the baseball players should take war jobs any more than ALL the actor, night club workers, and everyone else holding the same draft classification.

All the 4-F's are in the same boat. Baseball's 281 are a mere drop in the bucket.

BEHIND THE LINES

Pennsylvania's game population is suffering from a severe food shortage usually available for the birds and animals. Unless nature comes quickly to their rescue with a thaw that will break the seal of snow and ice on their natural food source, large numbers of the creatures will starve to death. It is more than six weeks now since snow first covered the food on the ground. A little later, much more snow fell. Some if it iced up and sealed off the food, and now from 25 to 30 inches of snow covers the mountains and game areas of almost all of the major game hunting areas. Warren, Clearfield, Cameron, Center, Clinton, Elk, Jefferson, McKean, and Potter counties are all bounded by the large amount of snow. Deer are suffering mostly because what food they are accustomed to eating is buried, and farmers report that the deer have been seen ransacking barnyards in the mountains and eating farm stock. Members of the Field and Stream club moved several weeks ago to get food to the game but found the snow an effective barrier that prevented them from reaching areas except the few main roads which have been plowed.

For a number of years now, the Jessup-Turner Athletic Club of Jamestown has been sponsoring what is known as the Great Lakes Open Outdoor Speed Skating championships at the Roseland Arena. Ice enthusiasts from all over this section of Pennsylvania, southwestern New York, and parts of Ohio have gathered together to perform in one of the finest competitive ice shows in the east. The sponsoring organization again extends a cordial invitation to all ice skaters of this vicinity to attend and compete in this year's championship meet which is to be held next Sunday afternoon (Jan. 21) at 1:30 at the Roseland Arena.

Scores of Warren cage fans are already talking about the Warren-Jamestown game slated for next Saturday night at the Senior High School gym at Jamestown. Looking back a few weeks, you will discover that Roland Taft's crew administered a one-point defeat to the Dragon men; and they are anxious to repeat their feat. But there is only one catch. And that is: Joe Massa and his followers are ready to return the honors by giving the Jamestown crew a good going over. And you can bet your life on this one—for the local cagers are going to be out there in top form and will also do their best to make the return trip to Warren with a victory tucked neatly in their score book.

PIAA Goes Ahead With Playoff Plans

Harrisburg, Jan. 15—(AP)—Edmund Wicht, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association said today that plans were going ahead for holding this year's state basketball championships.

Pointing out that the recent edict of War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes banning conventions does not apply to basketball tournaments, Wicht said: "At the present time I see no reason why the games should not be held."

From Latrobe came word that Mark Funk, president of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League was making plans for staging the annual championship games in that organization.

AN INTERESTING STORY

An interesting story was in circulation in Sheffield over the weekend relative to a group of four war prisoners from the Duhring WP Camp. It was reported that the men were cutting wood near Highland and when they returned to camp it was discovered that four of the men were missing. It was thought for a time that they had escaped but later in the evening a telephone call was received from Highland from the four men asking that a truck be sent for them as they wanted to come back to camp.

American 1st Army Enters City of Houffalize, Once Heart of the Belgian Jungle

(From Page One) killed and wounded, and 4,000 taken prisoner. In addition 100 German tanks were knocked out.

The Third Army gained up to a mile and a half on a ten mile front northwest and southeast of Bastogne. Obourcy, four miles northeast of Bastogne, was captured.

The 11th Armored Division, a new outfit commanded by Brig. Gen. Charles Kilburn of Silver City, N. M., was disclosed as fighting on the Third Army front. The division drove a mile northeast of captured Noville. Another of its units took Compigne, four miles northwest of Houffalize, and near by Velleux. The 11th was the 72nd Division identified on the western front. Of these, 46 are American.

As the slender tip of the salient collapsed, the Germans to the northeast fought like mad. First Army forces suffered heavy casualties yesterday in trying to get into the tiny settlement of Sterigny, six miles northeast of Houffalize. A battle went into its fourth day at Thirumont, four miles southeast of Malmedy.

The 7th Infantry Division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Fayth B. Pritchett, termed with the 30th and veteran First Infantry Division in a power assault upon St. Vith. The Germans were hurled from hard defended Lingueville and back to Faymonville, two miles to the east.

Patrols of the Third and First armies made contact south of Larochette, and since neither encountered enemy opposition it was believed the area west of Houffalize was empty of German save for stragglers, front dispatches said. They were being mopped up by the British Second Army.

Patton's drive east of the German-Luxembourg frontier along the Moselle gained up to two miles in two days and has resulted in the capture of five German towns. Three fell yesterday—Butzdorf, Nennig and Wies—the last five miles inside Germany.

Hodges hurled at least six divisions into the drive on St. Vith, ripping up the Salm river line, overrunning eight or more towns and drawing up an assault are six to nine miles from St. Vith on the north, west and southwest.

A front dispatch said that late last night American troops were holding on grimly at Hatten, eight miles south of the German border above Strasbourg, despite fresh attacks by a reinforced enemy. The fighting was house-to-house, and heavy artillery fire had reduced the town to a smoking pile of wreckage which observers compared with the destruction at St. Lo in Normandy. The Germans struck a dozen times with flame-throwing tanks, and when they were through the Doughboys rose from the rubble and attacked.

The Americans scored some gains in the Bitch salient of the northern Vosges. German losses in 14 days of their offensive in that area totaled 10,000 killed or wounded and 4,000 captured, a dispatch reported.

Assembly Starts Work On Vital Legislative Program

(From Page One) 5. Permanently taxing one-cent emergency gasoline tax netting $22,500,000 biennially to be returned to municipalities for road work to ease real estate tax burden.

More than 200 bills were dumped into the legislature soon after it set up committees to decide which should reach the floor.

First house measure was the anti-pollution plan by Charles H. Burner, Jr. (R-Montgomery). Louis H. Farrell (R-Phila.) got the No. 1 senate spot with a proposal to reapportion senatorial districts which closely follows the present lineup.

Martin's postwar plans were divided between the two branches for introduction. They provide comprehensive stream clearance, reforestation, port development and construction and improvement of mental, penal, educational and other facilities.

Quick senate confirmation was given Martin's promotion on Milton G. Baker, commanding officer of the Pennsylvania State Guard, from Brigadier to major general, and three other officers from colonel to brigadier general. They are John M. Gentner, Philadelphia; Robert G. Woodside, Pittsburgh; and Edward L. Davis, Berwick.

Other developments: 1. Democratic minority called for appointment of assembly committee to work out a program of non-partisan legislation; asked committees to seek explanation for road conditions in state.

2. Martin appointed Auditor General E. Clair Ross' chief deputy, Ted A. Rosenberg, Sharon, to succeed the fiscal officer who becomes superior court judge today.

Setting up of standing committees by the Republican majority made effective a previous agreement to give Democrats more house assignments even though less than the nearly 50-50 split demanded in view of closest party division in memory.

Foot-By-Foot Fight Slows Luzon Drive

(From Page One) panding American beachheads at Lingayen gulf must hold the road as the last good connection between them and other forces of Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita trying to struggle up bomb-cut roads from the Manila sector under constant aerial attack.

One Yanik force already has reached the Manila north road by driving to Urdaneta, 27 miles east, and slightly south, of Lingayen town.

But the first determined enemy stand is being made much nearer Baguio against Sixth Army units striving to push east along nine miles of concrete road from coastal Danortis to Rosario.

Recently more than 40 enemy ships were wiped out while unloading at San Fernando, the port for Baguio.

Map Replies To Critics Of Foreign Policy

(From Page One) ope's controversial political problems. While Wheeler got little support, there was evidence that another advocate of immediate action—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich)—may have interested President Roosevelt in his proposal for the speedy signing of a five-power treaty to demilitarize Germany and Japan after the war and keep them militarily impotent.

The listings answer the question of where selective service will make its first new inroads into industry this spring.

Admitting their loss would hurt war production, War Mobilization Director James P. Byrnes asked last night that the disruption be minimized by careful operation of the selective service system.

On the question, "where will the ax fall first?" Byrnes gave half an answer by laying down a job-priority table. This if followed by local boards, would insure that the least important workers, and those able to be replaced, would be inducted before the key men and irreplaceable men.

The other half-answer lies in a revision of the national list of "essential activities" which covers businesses and occupations contributing directly and indirectly to the war effort. The revision has just been completed by top war officials, working in secret with Byrnes.

CORYDON

Local friends have received greetings from Alfred Whyte, well known local man now stationed in California, who states the California climate is somewhat chilly and far different from that of Florida. With tons of snow and plenty of ice still making its appearance locally — we wouldn't mind changing places with "Al".

Snow in some wooded sections of the community is reported at 28 inches and over. "Babe" Bentley local game warden had solved the problem by using snowshoes. The highway wheel still icy is being kept clear of drifts and thus far no difficulty is experienced by those travelling the familiar routes.

Seaman Second Class, Robert Holsinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Holsinger, of the Willow Creek road, visited his grandfather William Carnahan, here while home on furlough.

A substantial amount of paper and other material used for war purposes was gathered through the splendid efforts of local school students during the recent drive.

Mrs. O. J. Tome, spent Friday in Warren. Donna Lee Malone, attending the Warren schools accompanied her here for the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Learn left Tuesday last for an indefinite stay with Sugar Grove relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruel Smith, accompanied by friends, were Saturday Corydon visitors.

Moscow's long silent victory guns "banged off in volume again for the capture of Kielce, announced by Premier Stalin in an order of the day. Kielce, a six-way road junction, lies 93 miles southwest of Warsaw and 80 miles east of the German frontier.

Konev's forces also seized Jedzejow and Wozislaw, junction points on the way to Krakow and Zlotniki, 17 miles southwest of Kielce. Then, plunging across the Warsaw-Krakow highway west of Jedzejow, they captured the village of Trzciniec in a 16-mile advance.

On the southern flank the fall of Palencznica placed the Russians only 21 miles northeast of Krakow, a key point in the enemy's Polish defense line and guardian of the route to Silesia. Capture of Glogowian, 28 miles north of Krakow, brought the Konev forces within 50 miles of the frontier.

Overcharges May Put Cash in Pocket, Says Local OPA Enforcement Attorney

Erie district folks are waking up to the fact that they can be their own OPA enforcement agents and make themselves a nice place of change here and there in the process, Francis Chojnowski, Erie district OPA enforcement officer declared.

Chojnowski said that the irate citizen, snarling under the trimming he got when he bought his Sunday roast or Saturday night case of beer, or second-hand automobile, no longer need scream because OPA doesn't do anything about it.

He can do it himself. And in Erie county as well as in neighboring areas, rent and other suits already have been instituted in the Federal courts.

Under federal law, any citizen who can prove that he has been overcharged for almost anything he's likely to want or buy, can start his own prosecution without a cent of cost to himself. The federal government will even pay for his lawyer.

Those who can prove an overcharge may collect three times the amount of such overcharge or a minimum of $25, whichever is the larger. In cases where he has been overcharged as much as $200 above the ceiling price on a second hand car, he may collect the neat sum of $600. He can collect the overcharge minimum of $25 even if the item on which he was overcharged cost only a nickel.

The law provides that where a buyer has been forced to pay more than ceiling prices, all he has to do is to get the evidence together—the evidence must include a receipt, of course—get himself a lawyer, march up to the court and file suit.

The OPA enforcement attorney in Erie will instruct citizens here on how to proceed and then they'll even tell the lawyer how to prepare and present the case.

Or, if the wronged buyer doesn't want himself involved in litigation, he can thresh out the thing before his local rationing board and get the amount of the overcharge returned to him.

All he has to do is to lay his case before the price panel along with the receipt and other evidence. The panel will summon the offending grocer, or auto dealer, or whatever, you, before them and hold a hearing. If they find that the offense was willful they can order the overcharge returned and three times its amount paid into the United States treasury.

Either way, the citizen does not have to wait for the OPA to start the ball to rolling. He can start the ball rolling himself and then keep it rolling.

MEN AND WOMEN IN SERVICE

Grand Valley Soldier Now a Lieutenant

Mrs. Arthur Garber, of Grand Valley, has received a letter from her son, Raymond L. Gates, telling that he has been promoted to the rank of second lieutenant, the event taking place in the very early part of December somewhere in France.

He also states he has been awarded the Good Conduct Medal, given for one year's service and exemplary behavior. Previously he had received the European Theatre ribbon, the Purple Heart, Combat Infantry Badge and an Oak Leaf Cluster.

Lt. Gates has been serving overseas with the infantry for better than 14 months and is believed at present to be with the Third Armored Division of the Seventh Army. Last August he participated in the invasion of southern France and, before that, took part in the Anzio beachhead invasion in Italy.

The young soldier, now 21, has just recovered after suffering an infected ankle but writes he is now in good health. Before this last promotion he held the grade of technical sergeant.

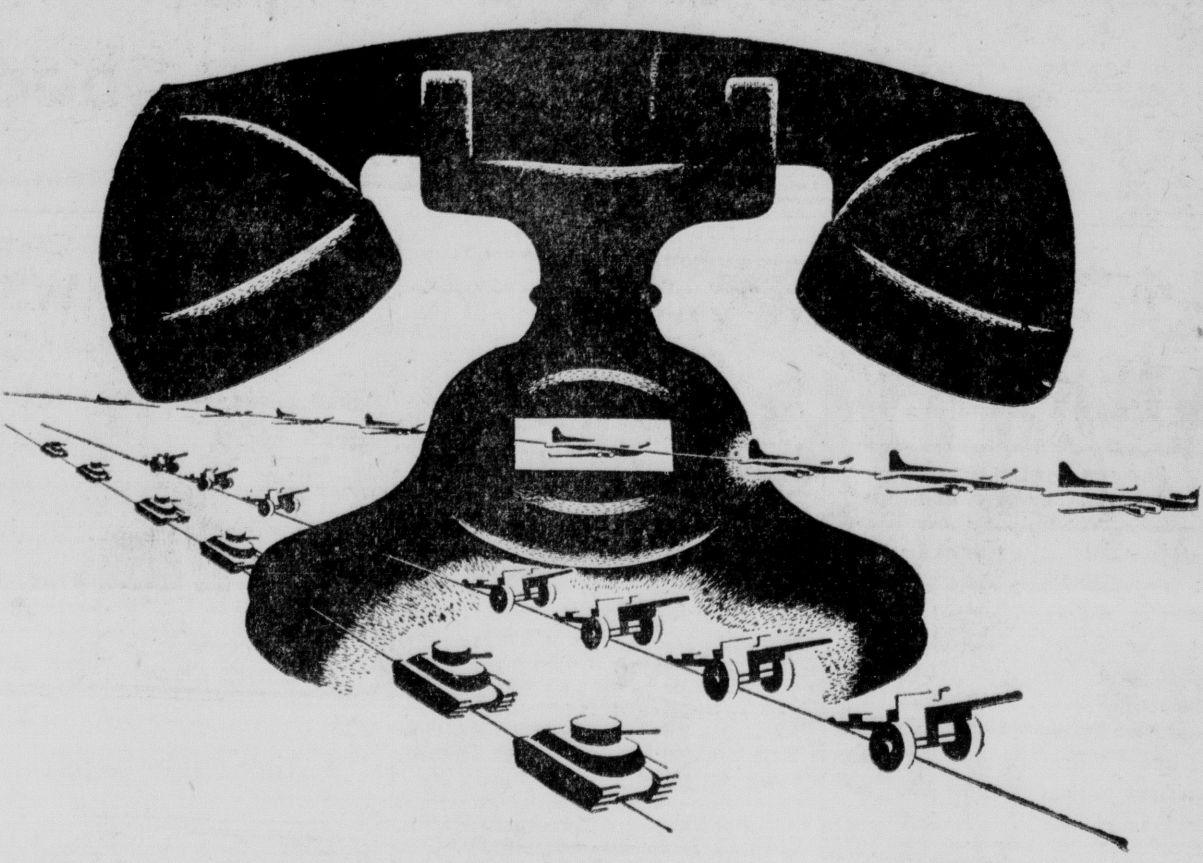

50th Combat Mission For Sgt. Fadale

From headquarters of the 15th AAF in Italy comes the news that T/Sgt. Sandy A. Fadale, whose wife and son live at 818 West Fifth avenue, recently flew his 50th combat mission as radio operator with a veteran B-24 Liberator group there.

According to the dispatch, he has been awarded the Air Medal with three Bronze Oak Leaf Clusters for meritorious achievement in aerial combat.

His group is engaged in bombing industrial and communication targets throughout northern Italy, the Balkans, Austria and southern Germany. He flew his first mission when the 15th AAF Liberators bombed Novi Sad port in Yugoslavia, and his most recent was the railroad yards at Villach, Austria.

Sgt. Fadale, while flying a mission to the Hermann Goering tank works at St. Valentin, Austria, encountered radio trouble. As the plane reached the altitude of 23,000 feet, the inter-phone system went dead. Immediately he left his position in the upper turret, clipped a portable oxygen bottle to his mask and started through the bomb bay to the command deck. He knew well his supply of oxygen was only good for about four minutes. Upon reaching the command deck, he took off his electrically heated gloves to get at the amplifier tube, also realizing that the temperature at that altitude is minus 40 degrees. Finding the tube burned out he proceeded to set up the emergency inter-phone system without oxygen and exposing his hands to frostbite.

Young Doctor Merry

Chapter 24

DR. NICHOLS had just finished his clinic and was relaxing tiredly for a moment in his austere private office when there was a knock at the door and a middle-aged nurse's aide looked in.

"Miss Lacey is here, Dr. Nichols,"

"Ask her to come in," answered Dr. Nichols.

The door opened and Isabel came in, head erect, shoulders back, her pretty chin thrust out defiantly.

"Well, Doctor Nichols?" she said disdainfully.

"Sit down, child," said Dr. Nichols gently.

"Thanks, I prefer to stand," Isabel told him coolly. "I shan't be staying long, anyway."

"Sit down," snapped Dr. Nichols, so sharply that she jumped. Isabel was angry because she had paid his thunder the tribute of an involuntary start. And her anger spoke swiftly in her answer. "You can't bully me, Dr. Nichols—I'm not one of your charity patients."

DR. NICHOLS reared to his really impressive height and snapped with resentment.

"Don't you accuse me of roaring at my charity patients, Miss!" he said hotly. "I never snapped at a charity patient in my life. It's the ones that have enough money to afford fancy and often imaginary ailments that arouse my ire. And fresh young snippets like you who think they can slide through the world on their father's money. You and that boy friend of yours should be down on your knees thanking your lucky stars for friends like Meredith Blake and her husband—"

"I despise Meredith Blake and I loathe her husband, and nothing you or anybody else can say to me can change my opinion of them," she flashed at him.

Dr. Nichols glowered at her.

"And what in hell's name ever gave you the idea that anybody cared a tinker's damn for you and your poor little opinion?" he roared at her.

Isabel stiffened and her blue eyes were flames.

"I don't have to stay here and be insulted by you," she told him shortly, turning towards the door.

"Come back here!" roared Dr. Nichols, and when she went on to the door, he added, "Damn it, I've got a message for you from that boy of yours."

He saw her slim back rigid, her body still, as, with her hand on the doorknob she paused. She fought him silently with every ounce of strength she had. But she lost. "You've heard from him?" Dr. Nichols—you've heard from him? I haven't—not a single line." She broke then and was weeping convulsively. Like a child, her arm crooked over her face.

"Here," he said roughly, yet not quite able to keep the almost unwilling pity from his voice, "mop up the deluge and turn off the waterworks. We're wasting time."

SHE fought down her tears and mopped her eyes with the rough towel, and said huskily, "Give—give me a cigarette, Dr. Nichols."

Dr. Nichols blinked, but he handed her one.

"You said you'd heard from Jerry?" she reminded him, thrusting aside his condemnation of her own emotions. "How—how is he? Please, Dr. Nichols?"

"He's got a good fighting chance to down this devilish disease," said Dr. Nichols. "But he's got to have help. And nobody but you can give him that help."

Dr. Nichols looked up at her under his thickly tufted white brows and said cautiously, "You never knew what was wrong with him, did you?"

"No," it was a whisper of sound.

And Dr. Nichols told her, quietly, simply, and honestly. At first she listened to him, white-faced, wide-eyed, incredulous; but as he spoke, every drop of color left her face.

"Oh—no!" she whispered, and her shaking hands hid her face.

Dr. Nichols gave her a few minutes to recover from the necessary cruelty of the truth. And then he said gently, "You see now, don't you, why it was so necessary for him to go away?"

"Oh—yes!" she whispered sickly.

"And why it was necessary to do everything possible to help in your own cure! So that you can go back home that much sooner."

"You think I'll get well, Dr. Merry?" he demanded flatly.

"I think you can, Jerry—if you really want to," she told him as flatly.

"The good old 'will to live', eh?" he derided. "I always thought it was a pretty corny gag when I saw it in the movies."

"Did you ever realize, Jerry, just what makes a corny gag?" she asked unexpectedly.

"Oh, saying it crop up over and over again—people using it until it gets worn out."

"And why would people use it so constantly—why would it always crop up—if it were not true?"

JERRY chuckled. "That sounds logical, Dr. Merry!" he agreed, and there was a touch of mirth in his manner that she had not seen there before. "Then you think if I want hard enough to get well, I will, huh?"

"Backed by all the resources of the United States government, by the finest brains in the country, by the men like Major Heard who have dedicated their lives to the eradication of illness like yours—I think the good old 'will to live' is your only possible contribution—don't you? And if everybody else is willing to do so much for you, you can't refuse to contribute that much, now, can you?"

"Thanks," said Jerry heartily, and added, "You're a very swell guy, Dr. Merry."

Meredith smiled at him. "And so are you, Jerry, my friend! A very swell guy!"

She felt as though a weight had slipped from her shoulders. She had been so desperately afraid that Isabel's message might not have been the most appalling error of judgment on her part, if Isabel's message had contained the wrong note. She could relax a little and free her mind of its burden in the knowledge that the message had obviously been exactly right.

The company, part of a service group commanded by Colonel Carl E. Rankin, was given the plaque for outstanding service in support of combat operations and all its members are privileged to wear the Meritorious Service wreath on their sleeves.

Supplying rations, clothing and other quartermaster equipment to heavy bomber bases of the 15th Air Force, the men of the company worked untiringly to maintain a very high standard of operational efficiency.

Sgt. Danuskie Earns Cluster To Air Medal

S/Sgt. Enoch M. Danuskie, 35, of 106 Water street, has been awarded the Oak Leaf Cluster to the Silver Star by Maj. Gen. Louis Craig, commanding general of the 9th Infantry Division, for gallantry in action in Normandy last June.

News of the honor is contained in a special dispatch from the 9th Infantry's headquarters somewhere in Germany.

Sgt. Danuskie was inducted in April, 1942, participated in the Tunisian and Sicilian campaigns and entered operations in Normandy shortly after D-Day. He is a member of the 47th Infantry, the 9th Division regiment which cut off the Cherbourg peninsula, later drove into the city of Cherbourg and constantly distinguished itself during the liberation of France and other occupied countries.

Sgt. Danuskie, whose initial Silver Star was awarded for gallantry in action in Normandy, also is entitled to wear the Distinguished Unit badge, awarded to members of his battalion for extraordinary heroism and outstanding performance during the Cherbourg offensive.

Chapter 25

A FEW days later, Meredith entered the room where Jerry lay a package in her hand, a package wrapped carefully and still proudly wearing its airmail stamps.

Jerry turned his head, but when he saw who it was, his face hardened and he turned away again without speaking.

"The mail has just come, Jerry," said Meredith quietly.

"Jerry, I have to explain about this," she said and held it up. "Are you listening?"

"Sure," said Jerry noncommittally, colorlessly.

"It's a message from Isabel, Jerry," Meredith told him, and all but held her breath.

She saw the slight stiffening of his body. He turned his head and saw the package, and said, "Okay—put it down."

"It's a message to be played, Jerry," she told him, as an attendant wheeled a portable phonograph into the room, and set it beside the bed.

Meredith took the wrapping off the record, handling it tenderly, and slid it on the machine. She turned the machine on, set the needle in place, and a moment later a girl's voice, warm, tender, and vibrant with its burden of love and honest, unashamed young passion filled the room.

"Jerry, my dearest darling, Isabel began, and Meredith turned and slipped out of the room and closed the door behind her.

It was late in the afternoon before an orderly came to her, saying cheerfully, "The guy, 214 is asking for you, Dr. Blake."

Her heart jumped. Jerry was asking for her!

Jerry lay propped up, watching the door.

"Please come in, Dr. Merry," he begged and when Meredith came to stand beside the bed, looking down at him, her clenched hands hidden in the pockets of her white uniform, he said humbly, "Please sit down, Dr. Merry. This looks as if it might be quite a session."

HOME ON LEAVE

Two Warren Bluejackets and one from Clarendon have completed boot training at Sampson, N. Y., and are home on leave with ratings of seaman second class before reporting for new assignments. They are: Paul J. McCoy, 610 Fourth avenue; Russell George Johnson, 118 Canton street; Raymond Verle Bengston, Clarendon.

Kondak is serving in a battalion which has been building the front line airfields for close support operations of the U. S. Ninth Air Force. His brother, Michael, lives in Warren RD 3.

Conboy has been in this island group about six months and Kingsley for four and it was only by accident they learned of each other's presence and spent an afternoon together.

AMERICAN 1ST ARMY ENTERS CITY OF HOUFFALZE, ONCE HEART OF THE BELGIAN BULGE

Formal Occupation of Town In Force By Doughboy Armor Slowed Only By Burned Wreckage of Nazi Equipment Cluttering Roads

OTHER UNITS ARE WITHIN SIX MILES OF ST. VITH

By JAMES M. LONG

Paris, Jan. 16.—(P)—The Belgian center of Houffalize, once at the heart of the vanishing Belgian bulge, was captured today without a fight by the "Hell on Wheels" Second Armored Division of the American First Army.

Behind Houffalize, the German stand on the Salm river cracked as a three-division American assault team beat slowly down the last six miles to St. Vith, a door for Nazi withdrawal to the Siegfried Line forts.

The capture of Houffalize narrowed the bulge to 15 miles west of the German frontier. The penetration, started a month ago, had extended to 40 miles almost to the Meuse and overran about 2,000 square miles. Only about 400 remained today in Field Marshal von Rundstedt's grasp.

FOOT-BY-FOOT FIGHT SLOWS LUZON DRIVE

Deepest Penetration Toward Manila Shows an Overall Gain of About Thirty Miles

TAP ROAD TO MANILA

By C. YATES McDANIEL

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Luzon, Jan. 16.—(P)—Sixth army motorized columns are rolling down a twisting provincial road within 98 miles—80 miles air-line—of Manila against no more opposition than an occasional sniper but other Yank forces are in a foot-by-foot fight with hill-entrenched Japanese on the extreme northeast flank defending the vital Manila north road.

(Tokyo radio, which is hinting strongly that the Philippines reverses are leading up to the ouster of Premier Kuniaki Koiso, quoted an imperial headquarters communiqué as acknowledging that "the enemy is gradually closing in on our forces on the central plains of Luzon").

The deepest penetration toward Manila reported today carried General Douglas MacArthur's southbound Doughboys out of Pangasinan, invaded one week ago from Lingayen gulf, into Tarlac province where they captured the highway junction of Camiling. That is an overall gain of 30 miles. From camiling a lateral road runs 11 miles east to Paniqui on the Manila north road.

That strategic highway, No. 3, which more and more will figure in the Luzon campaign, links Manila with the summer capital of Baguio. Japanese forces in the Baguio area north of the ex-

Bombers Hit Deep In Central Reich

London, Jan. 16.—(P)—Six hundred American long-range bombers struck deep into east central Germany today, hammering a synthetic oil plant south of Leipzig, the Krupp works at Magdeburg, and rail yards at Dresden and Dessau.

Some 650 Eighth Air Force fighters flew escort. The Krupp Works at Magdeburg produces Mark IV tanks. Some of the four-engined bombers made round trips of more than 1,000 miles.

Bad weather cancelled all operations last night.

Voluntary Rationing System Provides 15 Cigarettes Daily

Chicago, Jan. 16.—(P)—Cigarettes, which since last fall have been one of the nation's wartime hard-to-get commodities, will be available at the rate of about 15 daily to civilians under a voluntary rationing system planned by the National Association of Tobacco Distributors. The association estimated the average daily civilian consumption last year was slightly more than 17 cigarettes.

The association, with a membership of 2,800 which controls distribution of cigarettes to the country's 1,250,000 retail outlets, said last night that a card system of issuing smokes will be inaugurated within two weeks. The plan, designed to achieve orderly allotment, would mark the first time an industry attempted to ration in wartime a scarce commodity. The association's action followed a stand taken by the Office of Price Administration that it would not attempt to ration cigarettes because of the uncertainty of determining the number of smokers. The NATD system did not meet with any immediate objection by the OPA.

Under the system numbered ration cards will be issued by retailers to consumers who will be required to sign a declaration that they have not obtained cards elsewhere. The rationing will not be attempted at outlets for transient trade—hotels, railroad and bus stations—or at chain stores. About 13 per cent of the available cigarettes are sold at these places, the association estimated.

Supreme headquarters announced that German losses in the two weeks of the Alsace-Lorraine offensive were estimated at 10,000.

W. M. C. Lists Essential Jobs

Luzon Battle in 1898 Is Recalled By Marker

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Luzon, Jan. 16.—(P)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur was jeeping along the only active fighting sector around his Lingayen gulf beachhead today when the party paused to read a roadside marker.

"Major Logan, USA, was killed on this spot 1898," the legend said.

MacArthur turned to Lt. Col. Roger Egbert of Cleveland, O., and explained, "Logan was my father's aid when he (Gen. Arthur MacArthur) landed at Lingayen 46 years ago."

Colonel Egbert turned quickly to the jeep driver and said, "let's go on."

Egbert is Douglas MacArthur's aide.

35 ACTIVITIES DIVIDED INTO TWO DIVISIONS

Breakdown of Top-Priority Positions Is Guide For Selective Service In Future Drafts

CHIEFS IN CONFERENCE

Washington, Jan. 16.—(P)—The War Manpower Commission today divided its list of 35 essential activities into two general divisions, labelling one "critical." The breakdown was issued as a guide to Selective Service in drafting men 26 through 29.

In line with the directive of War Mobilization Director Byrnes, registrants in work on this top priority list will be held on their jobs as long as possible to prevent disruption of war production.

Those at work in activities making up the balance of the list will be the first called to meet the quota for some 200,000 men of this age group by July 1.

All jobs in seven general categories were designated as critical.

These are: Production of airships, boats and parts; production of ordnance and accessories; production of ammunition; production of metal shapes and forgings for essential products; production of machinery; and production of essential rubber products.

Except for scrap salvage, all jobs in smelting, refining and rolling of metals were listed as critical. In the transportation services, coal mining and petroleum classifications, most jobs were rated as critical.

The job listings were issued as President Roosevelt conferred with service chiefs and legislators preliminary to sending a special message to congress favoring national service legislation. The president asked for such legislation in his recent state of the union message.

In the job listings some production of textile, transportation equipment, industrial and agricultural equipment, chemicals and Allied products, and communication equipment also received top rating.

Classifications with no critical listings include agriculture and commercial fishing; finishing of essential metal products; and production of apparel.

WMC said that technical, scientific and research personnel engaged in any of the 35 essential categories will be regarded as in critical.

Get Your Tin Cans Washed And Squashed for Curbing

The big car is empty. It stands there amid the pelting snow, dark and discouraged. You can tell it is empty from the air of deserted gloom that overhangs it. If you step nearer and look down in, you can see for yourself that there is not a single thing in it; not a stray bolt, not a piece of chain, not even a broken crate. It is as empty as the boots of Hitler; as empty as the toothed banai of the Japs; empty as Mother Hubbard's closet.

But it needn't. You see, this is a very special freight car. It is not merely standing there doing nothing. It is waiting—waiting anxiously—waiting eagerly—waiting for tomorrow. It is waiting for the trucks that will back up to its tall sides and heave their burdens into its cavernous depths; heave, ho! and heave again; heave until the depths are no longer cavernous; until the contents rise to the half-way; the three-quarters; until that yawning freight car is chuck full to the brim of TIN CANS.

Get your cars out on the curb early tomorrow (WEDNESDAY) morning, you residents of Warren borough, of Pleasant township, of Youngville. Process them first—you know the formula (you ought to, after three years of it). Wash 'em, squash 'em, and curb 'em. Be sure they're clean. Be sure they're flattened. Be sure they're neatly available for the trucks that will pick them up, the trucks that will rush them to the waiting freight car. In all other parts of the county tin cans will be sent to the nearest district schools and trucked in from there.

That big empty car down on the Fourth avenue siding is going to be very disappointed if it is not filled to overflowing by dusk tomorrow. And so is W. T. Corbett, County Salvage Chairman, who carries quite a load of freight himself when he gets started. The last tin can collection was held on November 15, and nearly two carloads, or more than half a million cans, were gathered in the county. Due to loss of supplies in the recent German offensive, tin is more vitally needed than ever right now.

Have your cars out early—tomorrow!

Assembly Starts Work Upon Vital Legislative Program

Harrisburg, Jan. 16.—(P)—A time-conscious general assembly, alerted by Governor Martin's military-like methods, went to work today on the administration's legislative program.

The governor, a retired major general, laid down the bulk of his fiscal and postwar plans in big bundles of bills presented last night—two months earlier than customary.

Told by Martin the session should be short and business-like, due to the war, Republican majorities in both houses and senate said they hoped to get some of the bills out of committee for floor action as soon as possible.

Highspotting administration legislation:

1. Prohibit dumping of coal silt and other industrial wastes into streams and increase penalties.

2. Boost maximum unemployment compensation benefits from $18 to $20 weekly and allow payments for partial unemployment.

3. Put into effect the commonwealth's record $668,000,000 budget for 1945-47, including $61,856,000 for postwar developments.

4. Continue work on school cost-of-living bonus for school teachers, costing $27,000,000.

RUSSIANS TEAR BIG HOLES IN NAZI DEFENSES, MENACING COMMUNICATIONS LINES

German High Command Announces Fall of Schlossberg, Thirteen Miles Inside of East Prussia, With Penetrations in Vistula-Bug Triangle

STEAM ROLLER ALREADY IN POSSESSION OF KIELCE

BULLETIN

London, Jan. 16.—(P)—Marshal Stalin announced tonight the Red army had opened an offensive from two Vistula river bridgeheads south of Warsaw. The German high command announced this powerful Russian drive yesterday. The order said the Russian forces jumped off from the two bridgeheads January 14 with massed artillery support, but none from the Red Air Force because of bad weather. The drive, the order said, broke through "strong and deeply echeloned enemy defenses."

Nazis Bring Back Hitler to Stay Home Unrest

Curt Riess, international journalist and author of such best-selling books as "The Nazis Go Underground" and "Total Espionage" which have forecast happenings inside Germany with uncanny accuracy, is in Europe on assignment from NEA Service. The following is one of a series of his dispatches which will appear exclusively in the Times-Mirror.

By CURT RIESS

Copyright, 1945, by NEA Service. London, Jan. 16.—The reappearance of Adolf Hitler before the microphone and in public life after a prolonged and mysterious silence can be interpreted as meaning that things are going badly on the German home front. More than two months ago the press in American and England started a campaign asking the whereabouts of Hitler and questioning whether he actually were still alive. When, in the face of repeated inquiries in the Allied newspapers, Hitler remained silent, many concluded that he at least was sick or mad.

What we failed to understand was that the curiosity and apprehension of the Allied press was of no concern to Goebbels and the Nazi propaganda machine. Only apprehension and anxiety among the Germans themselves would have necessitated producing Hitler. His continued silence simply meant the Germans were not anxious.

However, the fact that the Allied press and radio went out on a limb suggesting the death or madness of Hitler now provides a major victory in psychological warfare for Goebbels. He can say now that the Allies always lie and falsify.

There are many indications that Goebbels is about to conduct a vigorous propaganda campaign against Allied propaganda and trustworthiness, combined with a campaign establishing Hitler as infallible and a savior. The start of this campaign was, of course, the declaration that Hitler had the original idea for the von Rundstedt counteroffensive. This alleged fact was "proved" for Nazi home consumption by the long account of Leon Degrelle, Belgian Quisling, titled "The Fuehrer Thinks and Plans," published first by "Front und Heimat," German telegraph service for the forces' papers and reprinted in many German papers.

The story tells about his meeting with Hitler at headquarters on February 20, 1944. Though times seemed bad then, Hitler was calm, composed, optimistic, Degrelle reports. He saw the Fuehrer again in the autumn. Hitler was even more confident, also, "amazingly rejuvenated," about Degrelle's family and the inevitable socialist revolution after the war. Finally, Degrelle says, he spoke of the war explaining that in due time he would stage a counteroffensive, while he was now organizing strategic retreats for just that purpose. Hitler was amused about enemy claims and propaganda. Nowadays Degrelle says, "Months have passed just as the Fuehrer foretold, and the enemy is halted in East Prussia and Aachen, and now the Fuehrer attacks."

While discrediting Allied propaganda and news sources always was an important aim of Goebbels, there is no reason to believe that he would have produced Hitler and built him up all over for this reason alone. Dependable sources from inside the Reich tell me that Goebbels for about three weeks was anxious to get the Fuehrer to talk with a gramophone recording unit waiting day and night near Hitler, till finally the New Year's speech was recorded.

At the same time Goebbels himself went out in praise of the Fuehrer. He said Hitler is working constantly for the Germans, "spends sleepless nights, but gives the impression of almost a young man." Goebbels wrote an article in "Reich" about Hitler "standing alone in the icy loneliness of genius, and Hitler knows everything. No details are hidden from him and he has a sixth sense enabling him to see what is hidden from others. If the world really knew what his message meant and what love he possesses for his own people and for humanity, the world would surely desert false gods and worship him. Hitler is truth personified. One must know the style of Goebbels, also read his new article in the German original to understand that perhaps for the first time Goebbels is badly frightened.

Stray Leaves From Notebook Of Reporter About Town

That letter to the Town Council anent having the city keep the sidewalks cleared of snow has sure started something. Have had ever so many telephone calls inquiring as to "why doesn't council do something about it?" and a batch of letters. One of the letters is sort of enlightening. "Strikes me Councilmen follow the line of least resistance. Evidently from the looks of their sidewalks they go on the supposition that the public will tramp down the snow and the cops won't bother them inasmuch as they are Councilmen. If they worked in a shop and came home in the small hours of the morning and found their walk covered with inches of snow I'll bet they would get some small tractors and plows and clean the walks. Which if those councilmen don't want to have the city do the work? Let me know and the heat will be so hot on those guys they won't need a snow shovel." Old John Q. Public evidently thinks a snow plow or two wouldn't do any harm.

Charley Wagner, who during the days that the Morning Chronicle was in existence here was on the desk of the paper and who is now located in Detroit on the desk of the Sunday News had his attention attracted by a story on the United Press wire about a Warren county suicide. So it roused a nostalgic note and he sat himself down to the typewriter and dashed off a letter to Coroner Ed Lowrey. His letter follows:

Jan. 11, 1945.
Dear Ed:
Look what I ran across on the United Press report one day this week. Imagine the guy I knew running a linotype, later a sports reporter and then an editor now running around Warren county in search of demented people—maybe I'd better never come back that way—I might be found by either you or the sheriff.

Long time since I sat on a coroner's jury with you but those were pleasant days to remember. Lot of fun I have in that city, and we didn't think of it as work in those days whereas now the Guild limits the hours and maybe hat's a good thing too.

The lad of mine who was born in Warren was killed on Invasion Day and after all the last war was fought to end all wars. May this one soon be over. Two more from our family in it and a son-in-law going with the medics in the Pacific shortly.

Have been sitting at the Sunday desk here now longer than I like to think and I hope it will not be much longer. Am planning to get away to Florida the 1st of February and next fall to locate there permanently. Mrs. W. and I have a weekly paper in one of the Detroit suburbs that is doing very nicely and if the Lord wills one of the boys will operate that just as soon as this war is over.

My best wishes to you Ed and all the old friends.

Charlie Wagner.

is another indication that things aren't going well on the German home front. Most interesting is the fact that it does not refer to the Rundstedt offensive. This does not mean as many here believe, that the offensive has failed. It means, however, that the offensive will not live up to the expectations to which the Germans were encouraged; namely, ultimate victory. In short, Hitler is anxious to keep from arousing hopes and even reminding the Germans that such hopes were aroused only a fortnight ago, evidently fearing the reaction already setting in.

He prefers to prepare the Germans for a long war until 1946. The new motive of the German propaganda line as described above, namely, all-out attack on Allied trustworthiness, is taken up by Hitler extensively when he reminds listeners how often the Allies promised immediate victory. However, Hitler admits that something is foul inside Germany by threatening to destroy those who are unwilling to continue the war.

Other Nazi leaders attempt to deal with unrest on the home front in a different way. Ley, in "Angriff," writes that arming the Home Guard, which means arming practically every German, proves that the Nazis can risk trusting every German and that no discontent exists, adding that neither Roosevelt nor Churchill and Stalin could risk this. Such a statement is whistling in the dark when read against a background of ever-growing nervousness and discontent in the Reich. There is no day without news of arrests of officers by Himmler, arrests of several Gauleiters, and a constantly rising epidemic of flu caused by lack of food and medicine and fuel.

All this goes far toward proving that Hitler spoke because he had to, because he is the only person capable of checking rising discontent and unwillingness to continue the war.

The other day a couple of kids were discussing the matter of playing "hooky" and somehow it recalled that playing "hooky" was really nothing new but that now they have a truant officer to chase the hooks instead of having the superintendent of schools do it. Could help but recall how W. L. McGowan used to toud around the city on his bicycle with his coat tails (remember the kind of coat he wore with the slit tails) flying running down and locating the youths who would rather explore than sit in school. Seems there were a group composed of George Mackay, Harry McCalmont and another brother who used in the days of spring when bees buzzed and hornets dace bit well in Jackson Run toured often. On the run was a summer house and just below it was a nice pool where the fish struck early and often. The tourists enjoyed the woods and the fishing until one day—Ah, that was the day. Up the lane leading to the cow pasture and the summer puffed the bike rider and he caught the gang red handed busily fishing and enjoying the fruits of the hours out of school. Yaw way was made back to school and some have always had a hunch that Mac would have enjoyed being out there with the bunch. They call it juvenile delinquency now. Bushwah!

Speaking of fishing, have you ever set a night line? That used to be the best fun in the world. At eventide you went out in a boat that would never have passed inspection as the water squirted through the bottom. You paddled and bailed water out of the boat and baited the hooks and line as you had time. Finally you had em all baited and went ashore. Somehow it was never a chore to get out of bed early to "look at the line." What a collection of mud puppies, suckers and once in a while a good gamey fish were on the hooks. But they all looked mighty good and you hiked for home with them only to have your mother greet you Hurry up and get that fish smell off its time to get off to school! Somehow there doesn't seem to be the number of kids enjoying that sport that there used to be. I'll bet Bill Walker has rowed a million miles on the creek and river setting night lines. "Bank" Mitchell would give a lot to pry himself away from the desk down at the West Penn building in Pittsburgh and relax in an old boat. Probably he goes to Canada now for a bit of fishing but here's bettin' he never has any more fun than he used to have in the river with "Red" Henry, Harry Gilbert and others setting a night line.

You know that bunch up at Sylvania certainly give you service. Months ago when the formation of the Sylvania in Warren was a thing much desired but not yet attained "Bob" Kronenwetter, of Emporium presented yours truly with a pencil. It was a darned good pencil and from then on it came in for general use. Finally some person with an acquisitive bump developed a yen for the pencil and lo and behold it passed from sight. Like all men do when a pencil disappears the little woman was accused. But she refused to be implicated so search was made in the spare vest pocket. No pencil there. Then a hunt was staged through drawers—desk if you please—and finally the pencil was given up for lost, strayed or STOLEN.

So one day when talking to Art Chapman, major domo of the Warren plant the passage of the pencil from the realm of the newspaper office was mentioned. Boy, oh boy in a short time along came another pencil which works just as good as the original. So here's hope that Art continues to enjoy life and will be around when other ornery cuss steals this pencil.

U. S. forces, surging across the Central Luzon plains on a 20-mile front, expanded their invasion beachhead to at least 200 square miles and sent patrols (white arrow) probing across the Agno River only 90 miles from Manila.

Orrie Loper, Register and Recorder, gentleman farmer and chief tillerman of the North Warren Hook and Ladder Company reports today that he is fresh out of steers. Orrie had some dandies at his farm and cattle ranch in Conevango township but they have all been sold and passed away and buried in lockers only to be resurrected when the red points run low. His hands were all red this morning when he reported at the Court House and it was stated that they got that way as he rubbed them so vigorously when contemplating with gleam his crop of winter wheat. Of course he couldn't see the wheat but the mantle of white snow oozing nitrogen to the young tender wheats tickled Orrie half to death. He is already planning on threshing the crop which really ought to be an old socker with all the snow that has been covering the young shoots this winter.

Those boys at North Warren who conduct the fire department there are comfortable once again. The boys have a due and proper headquarters all fixed up as a meeting place and for housing the fire truck. They meet every Wednesday evening and get a lecture on fire fighting and how to rescue damsels overcome with smoke and such. But of late the cold has penetrated their lair and it was cold. So cold in fact the boys couldn't keep their mind on the damsels in distress. They sought more gas but due to fuel regulations the gas man said "No". There was imminent danger of the boost-er tank on the truck freezing up and the boys were in a quandry on what to do. Small coal stoves were secured and finally one of the members came forth with a dandy oil burner. The day and the night, too, has been saved and now the lectures can continue in warmth and comfort much to the pleasure of the smoke eaters of our next door neighbor.

Charlie Hill is celebrating his birthday today. He has not as yet issued a statement as to which mile stone he is passing but a lot of birds can remember buying fish-hooks and snow shovels from Charlie a lot of years ago—Saw a contractor taking a look at the Salvation Army building yesterday and it may be that pretty soon sawin' and hammerin' will be heard as repairs planned are put under construction—Lt. Bernice Shine, of the WACS was in the city called here by the death of her mother. Miss Shine before enlisting in the Army Corps wrote under the name Patricia Pitt for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. She is a graduate of the Morning Mirror and since leaving Warren has attained a little more than local fame by her clever newspaper work. Should you see Lieut. M. Evan and Patrolman Jerry Park coming into town from the north on their day off all covered with oil and grease just remember they are oilmen. The two coppers have a lease on which there are 17 wells all producing. It is located near the old High Board fence and the boys are hopeful of filling the shoes of John D. Rockefeller some day in the future. Just to help you remember both dates Ash Wednesday and St. Valentine's day fall on February 14—Don't look now but 1945 will have two eclipses of the sun and two of the moon. However only one of the sun and one of the moon will be visible in the United States. Stargazers can see the eclipse of the sun on July 9 and on December 8 they can see the moon turn blood red.—Women generally around town are still sizzling over being cheated out of their red and blue points. Sort of put a premium on the folks who hustled up and bought all they could and penalized the families that conserved their points—Why do some women splash when they walk. Great gobs of spring thaw way up their rayons. And other dames trip along right merrily and never splash and splash. Observing, huh.—Keep your eye on Alex Rashid. He is going to give us a story some day. When? We dunno. Rumor hath it that cigarettes are going to be a lot scarcer this week than last. Got yours—

YOUNGSMILE NEWS

METHODIST MEN
There was a good attendance on Thursday evening at the meeting of Methodist men held in the church parlors. Major Harold McConnell of Torpedo, told very interestingly of his life in Italy from where he recently returned. He described the poverty of many of the peasants and war conditions in that country. He spoke particularly of a visit to Rome, which he found very little damaged, with costly and beautiful churches and interesting sights. Refreshments were served. Methodist men were invited to the Frewsburg, N. Y., Six Point Fellowship meeting Tuesday evening, January 16.

MONEY RECOVERED
Mrs. Lois Wymer, of Youngsville, whose husband is in service, lost for a time a purse containing money, just how much she did not know. After searching the house, she finally found the charred remains of the purse, which had been reduced to a waste paper basket and been burned with the scrap paper. She took the charred purse to a bank and it was sent to the proper authorities for reclaiming of money damage by fire and she received $30 last week, the contents identified in the purse.

PETERSON-LOOMIS
Mrs. Helen Loomis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Graham, of Bates street, Youngsville, was united in marriage Tuesday at 3 p. m. to Allen Peterson, of Warren. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride by Rev. Dwight Jack, pastor of the local Methodist church. Following their wedding trip, which includes a visit to Buffalo, the newlyweds will reside in Warren. Best wishes are extended by friends.

WOUNDED IN FRANCE
Sympathy is felt for Mr. and Mrs. Emil Johnson, who have recently been informed by the government that their son, Charles Johnson, had sustained wounds in action in France. We hope a later report may tell of his improvement.

HONOR WORTHY MATRON
At a dinner meeting in the L. O. O. F. dining room Friday evening, Youngsville Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star honored their worthy matron, Mrs. Cloie Mead, and Worthy Patron, Carl E. Anderson. The tables were very attractive. The colors of the order were used in decorations of stars, candles and wrapping of the dainty address books used. Welcome to the guests was not only expressed in the program, but in cut-out letters suspended above the tables. The committee, consisting of Mrs. Jessie Peterson and Mrs. Edna Peters, co-chairmen; Mrs. Dorothy Crandall, Mrs. Nellie Anderson, Mrs. Nina Hamilton and Mrs. Mabel Chipman, was responsible for the delightful dinner enjoyed. Gifts were presented to Mrs. Mead, and Mr. Anderson. Miss Lily Wood pleased with a vocal solo and also directed the singing of songs from a song sheet as the guests were at the table. Two of the songs were original numbers written for the occasion. Mrs. Dorothy Crandall as toastmistress used as the general subject the "Word Smile." Following the welcome and presentations of gifts, Worthy Matron Mead and Worthy Patron Anderson responded with appropriate words.

Letters to the Editor

Warren Times-Mirror:
Dear Editor—I heartily agree with the views expressed in Thursday's editorial regarding the position our government takes toward the 4-F's. I suppose quite a few of them are to blame themselves for not being physically fit, but many are suffering from hereditary defects, and many more are as they are because they did not receive the right kind of care in childhood.

In many families the pay check just will not cover all the needed dental and medical care, together with the extra milk and foods needed to build fit and sturdy bodies. Also all of us can remember many families in which the children were denied this extra care, because too large a proportion of the family income went to buy intoxicating liquor. Who is to blame for these conditions? Our government is proposing a great National Health Program after the war, upon which billions of dollars are to be spent, but no word is said about curbing or doing away with the greatest saboteur of health that is known, the liquor industry. No the poor man must have his opiate so he will not realize how wretched he is, and now his wife is joining him in his program of befuddlement. God have pity on the children deprived of the care of both parents. I say let us fight all the evils that have made so many of our citizens unfit to fill the place they ought to fill, and let all be treated alike. If it is fair to conscript every man for military duty and some for war work, it is fair to conscript every person to fill the place, in this all out war, that they are fitted to fill.

Change Is Announced on Renovo Div.

Buford W. Tyler, Jr., for the past three years division engineer on the Maryland Division, has been named superintendent of the Renovo Division, with headquarters at Erie. It was announced today by E. W. Smith, vice president, the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Mr. Tyler will succeed J. D. Morris, who has been promoted to superintendent of the Panhandle Division at Pittsburgh.

A native of Shelbyville, Ill., Mr. Tyler began his railroad service as an assistant on the engineering corps at St. Louis in 1925, shortly after graduating from Rose Polytechnical Institute.

He was advanced to assistant superintendent at Trenton in 1926, and in 1929 was promoted to supervisor at Sunbury. Following service on several other divisions, he was advanced to assistant division engineer at New York in 1934, and to division engineer later the same year. In 1939 he became an engineer at the Washington Terminal. On January 1, 1942, Mr. Tyler went to the Maryland Division as division engineer.

Mr. Morris began his railroad career in 1926. He was made superintendent of the Renovo Division in June, 1943.

Mr. Tyler will assume his new duties on Tuesday, January 16.

New First Aid Building Now Being Built

In line with its effort to provide the best of care for its employees the National Forge and Ordnance Company, at Irvine, has construction under way on a new first aid building. The structure will be of brick, two stories in height and about 35x40 feet, ground measurements. When completed it will be moderately equipped, and the nurses in charge will be provided with all of the latest paraphernalia for giving first aid treatment in event of accidents or injuries to employees. It will replace the old structure which will be razed to make room for a new steam boiler installation which is scheduled to get under way in the early part of April.

In addition to the first aid rooms which will be on the first floor of the new structure the second floor will be devoted to a new development laboratory. This will also be moderately equipped and will fill a need long felt at the plant.

A LATE LOOK

The House Military Affairs Committee, according to a dispatch from Washington, would like to canvass the manpower problems in military and war production fields before reaching any decision.

A look before a leap is certainly commendable. But why is the committee (and apparently the House and Senate) only now getting around to look? And why has legislation to cure these manpower problems already been introduced when congressional information is apparently so inadequate?

The existence of manpower shortages in certain critical fields is not news. The President first asked Congress for national service legislation well over a year ago. And since that first tentative request the manpower situation has gone from better to worse.

The need for more ammunition, heavy artillery, trucks and tires, radar equipment and cotton duck is six months old. Congress has known of this need. It has sent some of its members to the battlefronts to see the result of shortages with their own eyes. It has received from War Mobilizer Byrnes a detailed report on production and manpower problems.

And now, when enough of everything and more to spare is needed to press the attack in the Philippines and throw back the Germans in Europe, the House Military Affairs Committee wants to canvass the situation.

What has the committee, and Congress in general, been doing in the meantime? Well, for one thing, they were pretty busy running for office. There was the question last summer of recessing without unbecoming haste so that the members might get home to their constituents. And after the elections were over there was really very little that the waning 78th Congress felt that it could do, emergency or no emergency.

And then what happened when the new Congress finally rolled up its sleeves and prepared to tackle its critical tasks? Well, the first order of business in the House was to reconstitute the so-called Dies Committee and put it on a permanent basis. There was also considerable talk of investigating organizations like the CIO-PAC and curbing their future activities.

We don't say that a congressional committee to investigate anti-American activities is not, in principle, a good thing. Nor do we contend that "non-partisan" political organizations should be immune to investigation. But we do maintain that they are not of first importance today, at the expense of pressing military needs.

TRUCE IN ATHENS

A truce finally has halted (or at least tempered) the clash of arms between the Greek leftist insurgents and British troops, but it can hardly be expected that this will end such a violent eruption, especially since Greece is politically volcanic by nature—and has become one of the hottest of the international hot-spots.

However, the Allies will breathe easier with even temporary cessation of a politico-military imbroglio which has stirred the emotions of the United Nations deeply. It even has produced a divergence of views among the Big Three.

It's highly significant of the trend of the times that rarely has the man-in-the-street in Allied countries been so wrought up over the affairs of a little country. It is discussed everywhere.

In the opinion of many the next big step in the Greek affair—provided the lid can be kept on the fighting—presumably will be the holding of a post-war plebiscite to decide whether Greece is to retain the monarchy or adopt some other form of government.

TOMORROW—TIN CAN DAY!

Your attention is directed to an article on page one of this issue calling attention to the fact that there will be a tin can collection in the county tomorrow.

Full details are outlined for the guidance of all householders and it is urged that instructions be followed to the letter so that the collection will not only be made with a minimum of delay but that the cans be in the best possible condition for utilization in the war effort.

A richly deserved honor was bestowed upon Harold Banghart, president of the Warren County Boy Scout Council, last evening when he was presented the Silver Beaver award. Much of the success of the Council is due to the self-sacrificing contributions made by Mr. Banghart.

WASHINGTON—As the stream of war veterans returning to civilian life rises to higher water levels, the Veterans Administration is discovering problems "by the thousands."

Asked to set forth some of the more important ones, VA officials came forth with more "don'ts" than there are in a Mother's Day with a rambunctious youngster. Here are a few, and if you're not a discharged veteran, clip them and give them to one who is. Most of them are elementary but all are sound.

Don't carry your original discharge around with you. It will get dog-eared, dirty, and possibly unreadable. You may lose it. In either case the red tape involved may result in such a snarl that you'll lose benefits you deserve, or even worse. Get a photostatic or certified copy (it wouldn't be a bad idea to get several at once, if you're inclined to be careless). Either of these will serve in most cases. Put the original (and every other item of official service data you have) in a safety deposit box or a fire-proof safe or strong box. You'll have use for it the rest of your life.

DON'T procrastinate in finding what benefits you are entitled to as a veteran. Many of these benefits eventually expire, depending on how many months or years you have been out of service. Once the statute of limitations has run, you are simply out of luck. Establish your rights as a veteran as soon as possible and then keep informed on the status of all those rights in which you are interested.

Don't toss off your readjustment allowance as if it were vacation money. You can get it up to any time until two years after the war. Jobs are easy to get now. It may be good insurance against a period when they don't come so easily.

The same holds true for any war bonds you have purchased while in the service.

Don't, if you have the least uncertainty about what you want to do in life, neglect the opportunities offered under the G. I. Bill of Rights for further education or statute of limitations on these opportunities and they shouldn't be passed over for a job that is temporarily remunerative but will not equip you to take advantages in the future.

Don't surrender your national service life insurance for cash. Even if you are pinched and feel that money on the barrel-head is more important now, the time may come when you can never get that kind of insurance coverage again. For the same reason, don't let it lapse.

DON'T fail to notify VA immediately of dependency or marital status. Under many of these changes, you may deserve more benefits than you are receiving. If you deserve less, failure to notify will simply expose you to double-trouble when you are found out. Don't be in a big hurry to borrow money for a home, farm, business, or anything else under the G. I. Bill of Rights loan stipulations. Remember that this is a loan and has to be paid back. You may be throwing your dough into a well.

Hollywood Gossip

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—When Capt. Burgess Meredith was spending a few days with Ernie Pyle in New Mexico, talking over "The Story of GI Joe," he found Paige Cavanaugh there. Naturally,

Paige and the war correspondent, whom Meredith will portray in the picture, have been close friends since boyhood in Dana, Ind. They talk alike, which may be attributed to mutual hoosier origin, but they also look alike, which may be some phenomenon resulting from mutual admiration, long and deep-rooted.

Meredith tells that the three of them, after a long gab session one night, retired to their bunks and, unable to sleep, began talking back and forth in the dark. "Know why you can't sleep, Ernie?" Paige mused aloud.

"No. Why?"

"Because you're too rich. All that dough you're making."

Pyle thought it over. Then: "Paige, you know why you can't sleep?"

Paige bit. "You're not rich enough," said Ernie.

Paige considered that one. "Well, Ernie, I tell you," he said finally. "You give me half what you've got—and then we can all get some sleep."

"THE Story of GI Joe" now is well under way after the long delays. Meredith, Pyle's own choice to portray Pyle, is on "loan" from the Army Air Forces, which he joined as a private three years ago. He now bears a remarkable resemblance to the correspondent, which is not entirely due to the artificial baldness applied over his own shaved pate. The two are about the same height, 5 feet 8, but Meredith has to watch his diet, especially his desserts, to keep within plausible range of Pyle's slight frame.

Meredith has been seeing the country—Texas, Missouri, California, Washington, D. C., Indiana, Pennsylvania—since he joined up. He served with Air Force Intelligence in England, has worked on documentary informative films ("Salute to France" and "Welcome to Britain") which, he has been told, helped familiarize GI's in advance with Allied countries, customs, and people. He was in England for part of the robomb blitz.

THE movie assignment has been hanging fire for months and now that it's begun Meredith admits he faces a problem. "Ordinarily in a biographical film," he observes, "there's no need for the actor to resemble the character. But with Pyle so well known, especially to all the other correspondents, we've had to try to approximate him physically."

"All I can hope, with everyone having his own personal conception of the character, is that I won't run contrary to the public's estimate of him. If I do, I'll just start running. But I think it's more important to get his spirit than to follow minute details. And if Ernie wanted me to do it, that's the last word—for my protection."

Italian "Maquis" Fight in Alpine Snows

Though little-publicized, Italian "maquis" have been fighting Fascists since 1927, and now are carrying on bitter guerrilla warfare against Germans and pro-Nazi Italians amid the snow-and-ice-covered peaks of the French-Italian Alps. At top, left, a color bearer and companions take time out for a smoke; top, right, a comely woman school teacher, who fights beside her husband above the Little St. Bernard pass. Bottom, knee-deep in snow, a column of the partisans struggles up a mountain slope.

Nearly Hundred Attend 31st Annual Meeting of YWCA; Enjoy Program

Nearly 100 members and guests attended the 31st annual meeting of the YWCA held last evening in the activities building, with dinner served at six o'clock at three long tables placed in the form of a triangle.

Appointments were simple but very attractive, with reports contained in a blue and white booklet at each place, blue and white candles and small pottery shoes which emphasized the program theme, "Step Ahead with the Y. W. C. A."

Dinner music was provided by two young high school musicians, Eleanor Peters and Nick Geraci. Following the serving, Mrs. Carl Lundahl, president, welcomed old and new members and guests and spoke of many changes which have come in the year just concluded. She introduced several new staff members, Barbara Lesser, Ruth Mary Hucklebone and Alfreda Laugerquist and presented Bertha Frarig, program chairman, who in turn introduced the guest speaker, Rev. William Lane, pastor of Emanuel Evangelical and Reformed church.

For his topic "Helping Young People to Be Good Christians," the speaker traced a background in which he asked his audience to stop and consider what our relationship to God might be and in which he defined religion. He then urged that youth be taught a simple religion, based on a sincere acceptance of its responsibilities, the basic principles of a moral life and the knowledge that religion is a personal thing, to be attained only by the individual. This must be taught, he declared, through example and through contact with religious groups whose work it is to foster these basic principles.

In the business meeting which followed, Jennie Ryan gave the report of the last annual meeting and Mrs. U. S. Rogers reported on the year's finances. Speaking for a nominating committee composed of Mrs. H. B. Pettit, Blanche Francis, Mrs. E. K. Rogers and Mrs. Harriett Wilkins, Rowena Sammel presented the following directors' names for election for three year terms: Mrs. Freeman Peterson, Mrs. Jesse Smith, Mrs. Harold Warren, Mrs. Norbert Peterson, Mrs. Harold Smith and Jennie Ryan.

Mrs. Lundahl announced appointment of the following membership committee: Eunice Alexander, Mrs. H. G. Andrews, Mrs. Florence Barnes, Mrs. W. H. Brennan, Mrs. H. F. Clawson, Mrs. C. P. DeLong, Mrs. J. P. Fenstermacher, Mrs. L. J. Holmes, Mrs. Leon Laskaris, Mrs. B. J. Messerly, Mrs. Fred Wendelboe Jr., Mrs. Harriet Wilkins, Millie Kopp, Katherine O'Meara, Effie Peterson, Wilma Stryker. Chairman of this group and additional members from the board will be named at the organization meeting next Monday evening.

Mrs. W. F. Bennett made announcement of a class in Swedish to begin January 29 with Mrs. Emil Jacobson as instructor, a round and square dance for adults on January 18 and another dessert luncheon on the 26th.

Mrs. Lundahl brought the program to a close with a few appropriate remarks and singing of "Follow the Glean."

Another 'Teen-age Community Party' Scheduled for January 27th at Beatty

The Committee on Community Recreation held a meeting Sunday evening to plan for its next Sunday afternoon broadcast over Station WJTN on Sunday, January 21, and for its next teen-age community party at Beatty school, the date of which has been set for Saturday, January 28.

The broadcast next Sunday will consist of a typical recreation committee session, with some of its plans and problems. This will be the second time the committee has been heard in such a WJTN program.

Two new features are announced for the youth party on the 27th, which is open to anyone in high school or out of high school and not more than 21 years of age. There will be ice skating activities, weather permitting, in an auditorium entertainment in addition to the regular floor show. Two orchestras have been signed up for the evening's dancing. The group formerly known as Mac McCarthy's Band will play the first half of the evening and Dale Soderburg's Orchestra the second half.

Floor show tryouts will be completed next Saturday morning, when auditions will be held at 10:30 o'clock in Beatty auditorium. Anyone in the teens is eligible and welcome to this tryout.

Committee chairmen are formulating their plans this week and anyone interested in lending a hand is asked to get in touch with the following young people: Bob Wilder, general chairman; Charles Cochener, assistant; Teresa Fino, dance chairman; Georgia Spinney, decorations; Peg Blair, assistant; Jim Richards, reservations; Albert Marner, assistant; Dick Blair, games; Kenny Lundahl and Julian Gordon, assistants; Jo Ann Phillips, refreshments; Mary Hanna, assistant; Duane Wilder, lights; Charles Cochener, checkroom; Dorothy Fitzgerald, assistant; Eleanor Peters, Auditorium; John Erickson, assistant; Nick Geraci, music, setup; Allen Woodruff, cleanup; Rowell Hoff, assistant; Guillo Fino, ice activities.

The committee welcomes the help of any young people and would like a few adult volunteers, also.

Community Choral Group Plans For a Full Organization
Announced in conjunction with the holiday presentation of "The Messiah" was the decision to form a local community choral group. The executive committee designated at that time has chosen the name Warren Music Guild and will present it for approval of the entire group at a meeting to be held at 4 p. m. Sunday, January 28, in the First Presbyterian church. All who care to join such a choral group are asked to be present at that meeting.

The executive committee also announces that Jackson Barrell has been designated as director for the society and that its next community choral presentation will be "The Seven Last Words" by Dubois, to be heard during the Easter season.

Adolescents already engaged for this musical event include Stephen Carrier, of New Bethlehem, who scored such universal approval as tenor soloist for "The Messiah" in December; also Eugene Bisch, of Pittsburgh, eminent young bass. Plans have been made to include an instrumental section of the Warren Music Guild.

The executive committee of the new organization includes Felix Mira, president; Mrs. Emil Jacobson, vice president; Miss Viola Lindmark, treasurer; Miss Gladys Young, secretary; Nat Drake, chairman of finance committee, and all choir directors of Warren who will participate.

Great enthusiasm is expressed by this group in the eager response which has come to the plan of the Guild to present great choral works as community projects. The experience of officers and others who are lending their efforts and the careful planning of the undertaking assure the new organization of a sound basis and permanence for the coming years, for the greatest enrichment and cultural life of the community.

Davidson-Johnson Rites Performed In Bethlehem Congregational Church

Margaret Evangeline Johnson, of Warren, and Raymond E. Davidson, of Renovo, were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony performed at 4 p. m. Saturday, January 13, in Bethlehem Congregational church. Rev. P. E. Landerdahl, pastor, conducted the rites.

The church was attractively decorated with palms and white chrysanthemums and a beautiful program of wedding music played by Linnea Scott including the following, in addition to the traditional wedding march: "Salut d'Amour," "Sweetest Story Ever Told," "Because," "O Promise Me," "O Perfect Love."

Improving the Round Face

Photos, Glamour Magazine

If you have a moon face, don't sport a hairdo or wear glasses that repeat and emphasize the circular effect.

That's the advice of Eddie Senz of Fifth Avenue, New York City, whose conceptions are here presented in cooperation with the Better Vision Institute.

Photo at right shows how slanting glasses give a lift at the temples, elongate and "square" the circle face. The built-up pompadour and bow at neck also aid in breaking up the "run around" effect.

Greyhound Bus Wrecked at Three Points; Driver Is Injured

The Greyhound bus due in Warren from the west at 3:40 was wrecked yesterday afternoon near the Three Points service station. The big machine was driven by Leo Kidd, of Cleveland and he stated this morning that he had sounded his horn to pass a car proceeding in the same direction as was the bus. The driver of the car pulled over and just as the bus was passing swerved back close to the truck.

Not wishing to brush the passenger car off the road, pulled a little more off the road, hit a bump of ice and was forced a trifle more to his right. Hitting the shoulder on the road the bus crashed into a culvert, striking sideways. The bus was so wedged between the culvert and a telephone pole it could not be extricated last night by crews from this city which went to the scene.

CLUB HOUSE TALK

By CHIP ROYAL

AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

New York—It's about time that baseball got off the 4-F spot that Jimmy Byrnes and some of the pastime's writers have dumped it on.

The war mobilization director started it when he banned horse racing and blasted athletes who were unfit for the Army and Navy but who could run, play, fight, etc., for the entertainment of others.

Probably few groups of Americans ever took such a sarcastic scolding from such a high government voice—and all because they followed military dictates.

This agent thinks every able-bodied American belongs in the service. And if anyone ducks his obligation, he should be exposed. But when the Army doctors turn a man down, classify him as 4-F, that individual should not be a subject for finger-pointing.

As for commentators who have baseball "on the brink of a precipice," or "folding up," they can be excused. This is the so-called "hot stove league" season, and they must write something about baseball.

It does seem, though, that the writers could help the sport a lot more by following the late Judge Landis' theory that baseball will continue as long as each of the 16 teams can field nine men. Baseball isn't through any more than the Mississippi. It will go on and on to bigger and better years. Maybe there will be fewer players this season, but certainly there will be enough to keep the grand old game going.

I'll bet you the best stogie you ever had on that.

According to the little birdie in Washington, the Byrnes action was aimed at embarrassing about 400,000 4-F's into war jobs. The Army and Navy are not interested in taking all the 4,000,000 or more 4-F's. It would be too risky.

That means that Washington is concerned about 10 per cent of the rejects.

Baseball wouldn't make a squawk if it lost all the 251 4-F's who played major league ball in 1944. The game, and the men connected with it, haven't asked any favor. They never intend to.

Servicemen tell reporters they're all for athletics to continue and baseball is the last sport they want to see stopped.

Personally, we can see why ALL the baseball players should take war jobs any more than ALL the actor, night club workers, and everyone else holding the same draft classification.

All the 4-F's are in the same boat. Baseball's 281 are a mere drop in the bucket.

BEHIND THE LINES

Pennsylvania's game population is suffering from a severe food shortage usually available for the birds and animals. Unless nature comes quickly to their rescue with a thaw that will break the seal of snow and ice on their natural food source, large numbers of the creatures will starve to death. It is more than six weeks now since snow first covered the food on the ground. A little later, much more snow fell. Some if it iced up and sealed off the food, and now from 25 to 30 inches of snow covers the mountains and game areas of almost all of the major game hunting areas. Warren, Clearfield, Cameron, Center, Clinton, Elk, Jefferson, McKean, and Potter counties are all bounded by the large amount of snow. Deer are suffering mostly because what food they are accustomed to eating is buried, and farmers report that the deer have been seen ransacking barnyards in the mountains and eating farm stock. Members of the Field and Stream club moved several weeks ago to get food to the game but found the snow an effective barrier that prevented them from reaching areas except the few main roads which have been plowed.

For a number of years now, the Jessup-Turner Athletic Club of Jamestown has been sponsoring what is known as the Great Lakes Open Outdoor Speed Skating championships at the Roseland Arena. Ice enthusiasts from all over this section of Pennsylvania, southwestern New York, and parts of Ohio have gathered together to perform in one of the finest competitive ice shows in the east. The sponsoring organization again extends a cordial invitation to all ice skaters of this vicinity to attend and compete in this year's championship meet which is to be held next Sunday afternoon (Jan. 21) at 1:30 at the Roseland Arena. Clayton Waybeck, secretary of the Jessup-Turner A. C., is anxious for as many as possible who will compete in next Sunday's event. Local skaters may secure their entry blanks at the rink.

Scores of Warren cage fans are already talking about the Warren-Jamestown game slated for next Saturday night at the Senior High School gym at Jamestown. Looking back a few weeks, you will discover that Roland Taft's crew administered a one-point defeat to the Dragon men; and they are anxious to repeat their feat. But there is only one catch. And that is: Joe Massa and his followers are ready to return the honors by giving the Jamestown crew a good going over. And you can bet your life on this one—for the local cagers are going to be out there in top form and will also do their best to make the return trip to Warren with a victory tucked neatly in their score book.

PIAA Goes Ahead With Playoff Plans

Harrisburg, Jan. 16.—(P)—Edmund Wicht, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association said today that plans were going ahead for holding this year's state basketball championships.

Pointing out that the recent edict of War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes banning conventions does not apply to basketball tournaments, Wicht said: "At the present time I see no reason why the games should not be held."

From Latrobe came word that Mark Funk, president of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League was making plans for staging the annual championship games in that organization.

Overcharges May Put Cash in Pocket, Says Local OPA Enforcement Attorney

Erie district folks are waking up to the fact that they can be their own OPA enforcement agents—and make themselves a nice piece of change here and there in the process, Francis Chojnowski, Erie district OPA enforcement officer declared.

Chojnowski said that the irate citizen, smarting under the trimming he got when he bought his Sunday roast, or Saturday night case of beer, or second-hand automobile, no longer need scream because OPA doesn't do anything about it.

He can do it himself. And in Erie county as well as in neighboring areas, rent and other suits already have been instituted in the Federal courts.

Under federal law, any citizen who can prove that he has been overcharged for almost anything he's likely to want or buy, can start his own prosecution without a cent of cost to himself. The federal government will even pay for his lawyer.

Those who can prove an overcharge may collect three times the amount of such overcharge or a minimum of $25, whichever is the larger. In cases where he has been overcharged as much as $200 above the selling price on a second hand car, he may collect the neat sum of $600. He can collect the overcharge minimum of $25 even if the item on which he was overcharged cost only a nickel.

The law provides that where a buyer has been forced to pay more than selling prices, all he has to do is to get the evidence together—the evidence must include a receipt, of course—get himself a lawyer, march up to the court and file suit.

The OPA enforcement attorney in Erie will instruct citizens here on how to proceed and then they'll even tell the lawyer how to prepare and present the case.

Or, if the wronged buyer doesn't want himself involved in litigation, he can thresh out the thing before his local rationing board and get the amount of the overcharge returned to him.

All he has to do is to lay his case before the price panel along with the receipt and other evidence. The panel will summon the offending grocer, or auto dealer or what-have-you, before them and hold a hearing. If they find that the offense was willful they can order the overcharge returned and three times its amount paid into the United States treasury.

Either way, the citizen does not have to wait for the OPA to start the ball to rolling. He can start the ball rolling himself and then keep it rolling.

MEN AND WOMEN IN SERVICE

Lt. Gates has been serving overseas with the infantry for better than 14 months and is believed at present to be with the Third Armored Division of the Seventh Army. Last August he participated in the invasion of southern France and, before that, took part in the Anzio beachhead invasion in Italy.

The young soldier, now 21, has just recovered after suffering an infected ankle but writes he is now in good health. Before this last promotion he held the grade of technical sergeant.

The company, part of a service group commanded by Colonel Carl E. Rankin, was given the plaque for outstanding service in support of combat operations and all its members are privileged to wear the Meritorious Service wreath on their sleeves.

Supplying rations, clothing and other quartermaster equipment to heavy bomber bases of the 15th Air Force, the men of the company worked untiringly to maintain a very high standard of operational efficiency.

HOME ON LEAVE

Two Warren Bluejackets and one from Clarendon have completed boot training at Sampson, N. Y., and are home on leave with ratings of seaman second class before reporting for new assignments. They are: Paul J. McCoy, 610 Fourth avenue; Russell George Johnson, 118 Canton street; Raymond Verle Bengtson, Clarendon.

IS IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Orpha Look, of Youngsville, has received word from her husband, Benjamin Look, former employee of the Warren State Hospital, that he is a patient in an army hospital somewhere in France with a back injury received in line of duty. He writes that he would enjoy hearing from friends at home.

GETS PROMOTION

Promotion of Frank A. Kondak, of Warren, to sergeant has been announced by headquarters of a Ninth Air Force aviation engineer battalion in France. Sgt. Kondak is serving in a battalion which has been building the front line airfields for close support operations of the U. S. Ninth Air Force. His brother, Michael, lives in Warren RD 3.

HONDO GRADUATE

2nd Lt. James R. Mullhaupt, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Mullhaupt, 15 Glenwood street, was a member of the first class of 1945, one of the largest ever to be graduated at Hondo Army Air Field, Texas, to receive silver navigator's wings and AAF commissions in impressive ceremonies held in the post theatre.

MEET IN ISLANDS

In a letter from her husband, SeaBee Gerald Conboy, serving somewhere in the Admiralty Islands, Mrs. Conboy has learned that he has been promoted to seaman first class and recently had the pleasure of meeting "Dutch" Kingsley, from Youngsville. Conboy has been in this island group about six months and Kingsley for four and it was only by accident they learned of each other's presence and spent an afternoon together.

Pfc. Richard V. Brown, U. S. M. C. is spending a five day furlough with his wife at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. David, Liberty street.

FROM OVERSEAS

Edward Nasman, seaman first class, is spending 30-day leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Nasman, 21 Glade avenue, after having been overseas for the past seven months.

Pfc. John Waples writes his wife at 417 Pennsylvania avenue east, that he now is with the U. S. armed forces in France. He had been for some months in England.

Pvt. Kenneth G. Cole has returned to his station at Harding Field, Baton Rouge, La., after enjoying a 15-day furlough at home with his wife and infant son.

50th Combat Mission For Sgt. Fadale

From headquarters of the 15th AAF in Italy comes the news that T/Sgt. Sandy A. Fadale, whose wife and son live at 818 West Fifth avenue, recently flew his 50th combat mission as radio operator with a veteran B-24 Liberator group there.

According to the dispatch, he has been awarded the Air Medal with three Bronze Oak Leaf Clusters for meritorious achievement in aerial combat.

His group is engaged in bombing industrial and communication targets throughout northern Italy, the Balkans, Austria and southern Germany. He flew his first mission when the 15th AAF Liberators bombed Novi Sad port in Yugoslavia, and his most recent was the railroad yards at Villich, Austria.

Sgt. Fadale, while flying a mission to the Hermann Goering tank works at St. Valentin, Austria, encountered radio trouble. As the plane reached the altitude of 23,000 feet, the inter-phone system went dead. Immediately he left his position in the upper turret, clipped a portable oxygen bottle to his mask and started through the bomb bay to the command deck. He knew well his supply of oxygen was only good for about four minutes. Upon reaching the command deck, he took off his electrically heated gloves to get at the amplifier tube, also realizing that the temperature at that altitude is minus 40 degrees. Finding the tube burned out he proceeded to set up the emergency inter-phone system without oxygen and exposing his hands to frostbite.

Young Doctor Merry

by PEGGY GADDIS AP Newsfeatures

Chapter 24

DR. NICHOLS had just finished his clinic and was relaxing tiredly for a moment in his austere private office when there was a knock at the door and a middle-aged nurse's aide looked in.

"Miss Lacey is here, Dr. Nichols."

"Ask her to come in," answered Dr. Nichols.

The door opened and Isabel came in, head erect, shoulders back, her pretty chin thrust out defiantly.

"Well, Doctor Nichols?" she said disdainfully.

"Sit down, child," said Dr. Nichols gently.

"Thanks, I prefer to stand," Isabel told him coolly. "I shan't be staying long, anyway."

"Sit down," snapped Dr. Nichols, so sharply that she jumped.

Isabel was angry because she had paid his thunder the tribute of an involuntary start. And her anger spoke swiftly in her answer. "You can't bully me, Dr. Nichols—I'm not one of your charity patients."

be insulted by you," she told him shortly, turning towards the door.

"Come back here!" roared Dr. Nichols, and when she went on to the door, he added, "Damn it, I've got a message for you from that boy of yours."

He saw her slim back rigid, her body still, as with her hand on the doorknob she paused. She fought him silently with every ounce of strength she had. But she lost. "You've heard from him? Dr. Nichols—you've heard from him? I haven't—not a single line." She broke then and was weeping convulsively, like a child, her arm crooked over her face.

"Here," he said roughly, yet not quite able to keep the almost unwilling pity from his voice, "mop up the deluge and turn off the waterworks. We're wasting time."

SHE made a little gesture with a shaking hand, unable to think of anything but Jerry and his need of her.

"I may go to see him?" she begged.

"Not just now, child," Dr. Nichols was very gentle.

Her face crumpled like that of a hurt child, but after a moment she reminded him, "You said I could help him?"

"You can. No one else in the world can, child," said Dr. Nichols. "Dr. Merry wants you to make a recording of a message straight from your heart to him—something that no one save the two of you will ever hear. It's a big assignment, and it's got to be right—because if it isn't it will be worse for him than if you had sent him no message at all. Can you do it?"

"Yes," she said quietly, with no hint of reservation.

DR. NICHOLS reared to his really impressive height and snapped with resentment.

"Don't you accuse me of roaring at my charity patients, Miss!" he said hotly. "I never snapped at a charity patient in my life. It's the ones that have enough money to afford fancy and often imaginary ailments that arouse my ire. And these young snippets like you who think they can slide through the world on their father's money. You and that boy friend of yours should be down on your knees thanking your lucky stars for friends like Meredith Blake and her husband—"

"I despise Meredith Blake and Lioathe her husband, and nothing you or anybody else can say to me can change my opinion of them," she flashed at him.

Dr. Nichols glowered at her.

"And what in hell's name ever gave you the idea that anybody cared a tinker's damn for you and your poor little opinion?" he roared at her.

Isabel stiffened and her blue eyes were flames.

"I don't have to stay here and CHIEF fought down her tears and mopped her eyes with the rough towel, and said huskily, "Give—give me a cigarette, Dr. Nichols."

Dr. Nichols blinked, but he handed her one.

"You said you'd heard from Jerry?" she reminded him, thrusting aside his condemnation of her own emotions. "How—how is he? Please, Dr. Nichols?"

"He's got a good fighting chance to down this devilish disease," said Dr. Nichols. "But he's got to have help. And nobody but you can give him that help."

Dr. Nichols looked up at her under his thickly tufted white brows and said cautiously, "You never knew what was wrong with him, did you?"

"No," it was a whisper of sound.

And Dr. Nichols told her, quietly, simply, and honestly. At first she listened to him, white-faced, wide-eyed, incredulous; but as he spoke, every drop of color left her face.

"Oh—no!" she whispered, and her shaking hands hid her face.

Dr. Nichols gave her a few minutes to recover from the necessary cruelty of the truth. And then he said gently, "You see now, don't you, why it was so necessary for him to go away?"

"Oh—yes!" she whispered sickly.

"And why it was necessary to do it without anyone outside the hospital here knowing the truth?"

"I guess so," she admitted unwillingly.

"And why the whole thing has been so bitterly unfair to Dr. Merry and her husband?"

SHE made a little gesture with a shaking hand, unable to think of anything but Jerry and his need of her.

"I may go to see him?" she begged.

"Not just now, child," Dr. Nichols was very gentle.

Her face crumpled like that of a hurt child, but after a moment she reminded him, "You said I could help him?"

"You can. No one else in the world can, child," said Dr. Nichols. "Dr. Merry wants you to make a recording of a message straight from your heart to him—something that no one save the two of you will ever hear. It's a big assignment, and it's got to be right—because if it isn't it will be worse for him than if you had sent him no message at all. Can you do it?"

"Yes," she said quietly, with no hint of reservation.

Chapter 25

A FEW days later, Meredith entered the room where Jerry lay, a package in her hand, a package wrapped carefully and still proudly wearing its airmail stamps.

Jerry turned his head, but when he saw who it was, his face hardened and he turned away again without speaking.

"The mail has just come, Jerry," said Meredith quietly.

"Jerry, I have to explain about this," she said and held it up. "Are you listening?"

"Sure," said Jerry noncommittally, colorlessly.

"It's a message from Isabel, Jerry," Meredith told him, and all but held her breath.

She saw the slight stiffening of his body. He turned his head and saw the package, and said, "Okay—put it down."

"It's a message to be played, Jerry," she told him, as an attendant wheeled a portable phonograph into the room, and set it beside the bed.

Meredith took the wrapping off the record, handling it tenderly, and slid it on the machine. She turned the machine on, set the needle in place, and a moment later a girl's voice, warm, tender, and vibrant with its burden of love and honest, unashamed young passion filled the room.

"Jerry, my dearest darling, Isabel began, and Meredith turned and slipped out of the room and closed the door behind her.

It was late in the afternoon before an orderly came to her, saying cheerfully, "The guy in 214 is asking for you, Dr. Blake."

Her heart jumped. Jerry was asking for her!

Jerry lay propped up, watching the door.

"Please come in, Dr. Merry," he begged, and when Meredith came to stand beside the bed, looking down at him, her clenched hands hidden in the pockets of her white uniform, he said humbly, "Please sit down, Dr. Merry. This looks as if it might be quite a session."

Meredith pulled the white chair that stood at the head of his bed around to the side and sat down, smiling at him.

"Would a cigarette make it easier, Jerry?" she suggested, trying to lighten his tension.

"I guess it would," Jerry agreed gratefully, and when she had lit one for him, he inhaled deeply before he turned his head towards the machine beside him and said huskily, "That was your idea, wasn't it? Having Isabel read my record for me—message, so I could hear her voice?"

"I thought it might help, Jerry," Meredith admitted.

Jerry nodded.

"Sure, I see what you mean," he said after a moment. He drew deeply on the cigarette again, and she saw that his hand was shaking just a little. "I guess I've been pretty much of a heel," Dr. Merry, and it's up to me to say—I'm sorry. Though that's pretty feeble."

"Jerry," she said quietly, "would you like to—make amends for what happened—for what was no fault of your own—for something for which you have no real right to feel guilty?"

He looked up at her, puzzled.

"Well, sure—but how can I—"

"By getting well, Jerry—so that you can go back and help those of us who want to see River Gap the finest, healthiest town in the world," she told him swiftly and strongly.

"You think maybe I could see to it that no other fellow came strewing strange diseases around River Gap?" he almost sneered.

"I think you can help us to keep that from happening again," she told him. "Having been healed yourself—"

"You mean, if I am healed?" he cut in.

"I mean no such thing! I mean when," she told him sharply. "You will be, Jerry. You're responding to treatment. The germ has been isolated; they are studying it and the cure will follow. You and Isabel will have a great stake in the future development of River Gap, and it is your duty
